Israel Court Finds Eichmann Guilty---He Could Hang

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI) — Adolf Eichmann was convicted today of crimes against the Jewish people, crimes against humanity, and war crimes for the Nazi slaughter of six million Jews in World War II.

Without a flicker of emotion, Eichmann heard the presiding justice of a three-judge court read the verdict that may send him to the gallows. He was convicted on all 15 counts of the indictment, and 12 of these carry a death penalty which some legal experts hold is mandatory under Israeli law.

If the court should find there are extenuating circumstances the former Nazi officer might be sentenced to prison for a term not less than 10 years.

The reading of the verdict came quickly at the reopening of the case after the jurists had spent four months pondering the 1,250,000 words of testimony at the trial and more than 1,500 exhibits. The trial began April 11, about 11 months after Israeli agents tracked Eichmann to a hideout in Argentina and returned him to Israel to face charges unprecedented in legal history.

For the next two days the court will continue reading its opinion, explaining the guilty verdict. Sentencing may come Thursday or Friday. An appeal to the Israeli Supreme Court is expected.

The verdict was handed down by Presiding Judge Moshe Landau and two associate judges, Yitzhak Raveh and Benjamin Halevi.

Standing ramrod stiff as a Nazi officer, Eichmann heard Judge Landau read the fateful words:

"The court finds you guilty of crimes against the Jewish people (four counts), crimes against humanity (seven counts), war crimes (one count), and membership in an illegal organization (three counts)."

After disclosing the court's verdict Judge Landau questioned the actions and motives of the entire German nation, the anti-Nazi allies, and even Jews outside Germany at the time the Nazis were embarked upon the systematic slaughter of Jews.

"How could this happen in the light of day and why was it just the German people from which this great evil sprang?" Landau asked.

"Could the Nazis have carried out their evil designs without the help given them by other peoples, in whose midst the Jews dwelt? Would it have been possible to avert the catastrophe, at least in part, if the allies had displayed a great will to assist the persecuted?

"Did the Jewish people in the lands of freedom do all in their power to rally to the rescue of their brethren and to sound the alarm for help?"

Although he was convicted of complicity in the mass murder of millions of Jews Eichmann was not tried for murder. He was found guilty of war crimes and crimes against the Jewish people which carry the death penalty. There is no death penalty for murder in Israel.

If Eichmann is hanged he will be the first man executed under a civil court verdict in the state of Israel.

During the trial Eichmann had pictured himself as a Nazi of small importance who did nothing but carry out the orders of his superiors.

Librarian, Ex-D.A. Say Miller's Novel 'Obscene

Weissich Testifies His View

By CARLETON WILLIAMS

A former Marin County district attorney, a public school district librarian and the director of a chain of private schools today branded Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer" as obscene.

Taking the stand this morning for the prosecution in the Marin obscenity trial were William O. Weissich, district attorney from 1955 to 1960; John Joseph Gallas, supervising librarian for the Novato Unified School District and chairman of the Marin County Library Advisory Committee, and James W. Kirchanski, director of the 3R Schools in San Rafael, Santa Rosa and Calistoga.

MORBID INTEREST

"I found the predominant—indeed, the only appeal of the book is to a morbid interest in sex and excretion," Weissich said. "It exceeds the limits of candor as we accept them here. I can find no redeeming social importance to the book. I find it only socially destructive."

Gallas, 35-year-old graduate of University of San Francisco, said the book "reduces man to the level of a beast."

"It does not give man an opportunity to determine his own destiny; it says man is nothing," he testified, adding that it did not have sufficient literary merit to qualify as great literature.

Cross-examined by Lawrence Goldberg, one of the defense attorneys for Frank B. Pershina, who is charged with knowingly selling obscene matter at his Golden Hind Book Store in San Anselmo, Gallas said a book must "make a man feel nobler" to be considered literature.

DENOUNCES JOYCE

Gallas denounced the works of William Faulkner, James Joyce ("Ulysses"), James S. Jones ("From Here To Eternity"), and Norman Mailer ("The Naked and the Dead") as, like Miller's group, beneath the stature of great literature.

D. H. Lawrence's "Lady Chatterly's Lover," he said, made the reader want to correct his faults. "He showed guilt in the minds of the people in the book who had done wrong," Gallas said.

Weissich, cross-examined by defense attorney Charles W. Pierce, said that during his term as district attorney he read every questionable book that appeared on Marin County news stands and book stores. He did not prosecute because of the sale of a book during his term, he said.

SAME WORDS

"Lady Chatterly's Lover" used the same four-letter words at "Tropic," Weissich admitted, but he said the Lawrence book "had a plot, had real problems which the characters resolved.

"There is nothing wrong with sex, per se," Weissich

FORMER AND PRESENT PROSECUTORS — William O. Weissich is questioned on the witness stand by his successor as district attorney, Roger P. Garety (standing at right, back to camera) on the literary merits of "Tropic of Cancer." Weissich said that, according to the standards of Marin County, the book was "obscene."

Umbrella Weather Forecast

"Warmer and damper" is forecast for tonight and tomorrow in Marin County. Rain is considered possible tonight, probable tomorrow.

But a marrow-chilling 25 degrees was registered early today at the county fire station in Woodacre, with quite a scattering of other readings below the 32-degree freezing mark. Many seasonal lows were hit.

Novato took runner-up honors with a reading of 28 degrees during the night. San Anselmo reported a low of 29 this morning. Recordings of 30 degrees were reported in Tamalpais Valley, San Rafael, and Chevy Chase, district of Larkspur.

Fairfax and Mill Valley reported 34 degrees. Belvedere 35 and Sausalito 40. Hamilton Air Firce Base was right on the 32-degree freezing point.

Lower barometer and higher temperatures were expected because of the approach of a "weather front" southward from off the Oregon-Washington coast.

Break Official

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union has severed diplomatic relations with Albania, the official Soviet Tass news agency said today. (See story, page 2.)

HE GOT CAUGHT

He Ate, He Drank, He Slept, He Oops!

A San Francisco laborer lived it up for a night in the Sausalito home of vacationing John S. Rasmussen.

He slept in Rasmussen's bed, watched his television, drank his liquor and stole his suit.

Then, in trying to escape yesterday, he ran right into the arms of police.

Police Sgt. Stanley Kelly and Patrolman John Lunt, called at 12:15 p.m. yesterday to check a report of a prowler at the Rasmussen home at 251 Cazneau Avenue, said they rounded the corner of the house as a neighbor, Trevor Evans of 35 Marie Street, was chasing 27-year-old laborer Troy Hayward.

"Stop him! There he goes!" cried Evans.

Hayward glanced at the steep hill at his side, looked back at the pursuing Evans, and headed straight for the arms of the law.

"I'm coming right to you," he yelled.

Evans told police that yesterday he noticed a broken window in the Rasmussen house. He telephoned Mrs. Jean Baglion of 25 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, a relative of the Rasmussens. She and her granddaughter, Dianne Baglion, arrived with a key, but could not get in the front doors as it was chain-locked inside.

Mrs. Bglion and her granddanghter went around the house, peeked through windows and saw a bed had been slept in, the television was playing, and there was a man in the house.

They went next door for Evans. Just as he gained entry to the house, flushing out Hayward, police appeared in the driveway.

Police said Hayward had burned his own clothing Saturday night behind the house and taken a suit out of the closet to wear. Then he made himself at home, drinking Rasmussen's whiskey.

Police Chief Howard Goerndt said police were looking for Hayward for ramming a borrowed auto into the car of Clarence Kane at Second and Main Streets Saturday. He then took a taxi to Cazneau and, telling the cab driver he was going to his house for money, disappeared.

Hayward was booked in county jail for investigation of burglary and hit-run driving.

Bridge Leap Victim Still Is Critical

The condition of Francis Patrick Kennedy, 20-year-old Oakland youth who jumped from the Golden Gate Bridge a week ago, remained unchanged today at Marin General Hospital.

Kennedy, the second person to leap from the bridge and survive, has been in critical condition since his admission to the hospital.

Policeman Says He's Not Guilty

After a number of court delays in recent weeks, suspended San Rafael Policeman Arthur M. Newman, 34, pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court today to conspiracy, burglary and robbery charges.

Judge Richard M. Sims Jr. set Dec. 26 for fixing date for trial.

Robert W. Cory, 25, San Francisco truck driver, asked for dismissal of the conspiracy charges against himself. The judge denied this motion. Cory pleaded innocent. Date for his trial also will be set on Dec. 26.

Robert Harris Miller, 37, San Francisco refrigerator firm employee, also accused of being an accomplice of Newman's, has pleaded innocent and his trial is set for Jan. 16. Fred W. Sullins, former San Francisco night club bouncer, is to face trial Jan 3 in the same case.

Nikita Seizure Is Reported

PARIS (AP) — The newspaper France Soir today quoted well informed western sources as saying Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev apparently suffered a slight stroke recently.

The article by Michel Gorday, France Soir's Russian expert, said observers noted Khrushchev stopped several times during a speech Saturday, seemed to lose the thread of his thoughts, stammered and had difficulty in finishing sentences.

Gorday wrote that the reports reaching Paris said a slight stroke was apparently suffered after the closing of the 22nd Communist Party Congress.

Big Four Ministers Open Session On Berlin

PARIS (UPI) — The Big Four western foreign ministers launched an all-out drive today to restore faltering Allied unity on Berlin.

As they met, North Atlantic Treaty Organization Secretary General Dirk U. Stikker warned grimly that the West can surmount the Berlin crisis only if it remains militarily strong.

Stikker spoke to a session here of the assembly of the Western European Union — a seven-nation group comprising Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. The assembly is meeting here simultaneously with the Big Four foreign ministers.

"Whether the present crisis will, as we all hope, be resolved through negotiation or whether we will be forced to defend ourselves by other means, our military strength will be the essential condition of our success," Stikker said.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, British Foreign Secretary Lord Home, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder met in the French Foreign Office to begin two days of intensive discussion of the Berlin problem.

The session lasted two-and-a-quarter hours and was devoted largely to hearing a report from Big Four experts who have been studying the Berlin problem in recent weeks. They scheduled their next meeting for tomorrow.

Optical Firms Are Re-Indicted For Price Fixing

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two of the nation's largest optical firms and vice presidents of each were re-indicted in federal court today on price fixing charges.

Previous indictments brought against Bausch and Lomb Inc., of Rochester, N.Y., and the American Optical Co. of Southbridge, Mass., under the Sherman anti-trust law were dismissed recently by U.S. District Judge Robert E. Tehan.

Judge Tehan said that the indictments should have been brought under the Clayton Act. Today's re-indictments were so based.

Alton K. Marsters, vice president of Bausch & Lomb, and Victor D. Kniss, executive vice president of American Optical, also were re-indicted.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

McNamara In London

LONDON (UPI)—United States Defense Secretary Robert McNamara arrived for talks with British Defense Minister, Harold Watkinson.

McNamara told news men he intended to have "a series of technical discussions" with Watkinson.

Gold And Dollars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon expects the U.S. gold-and-dollar outflow to increase in 1962 to between two billion dollars and 2.5 billion dollars.

Although this would be higher than the estimated 1961 balance of payments deficit of more than 1.7 billion dollars, Dillon is saying in private conversations the rise is no concern for alarm.

Dillon points out that this year marked a big improvement from the gold-and-dollar drains of the preceding three years, each of which exceeded three billion dollars.

Labor Pledge

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — Walter Reuther today pledged an all-out fight to commit the AFL-CIO to a tough new system for handling labor's internal wars and to a multimillion-dollar organizing drive.

The industrial unions headed by Reuther made it clear at a caucus last night that unless the-CIO convention adopts their proposals they will step up their battling with rival building trades.

The building trades called a meeting of their own today to decide their course. It was strongly indicated in advance they will veto the industrial union's proposals.

New Storm

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new snowstorm came out of the Rockies today as winter smote the nation with disagreeable weather that included record sub-zero temperatures, road-blocking snow, flooding rains and shattering winds.

The weather was a factor in the deaths of at least 55 persons since a previous snowstorm crossed the Midwest Friday night.

Snow depths in New Mexico ranged from eight inches in Raton to 20 at the Nageezi trading post in San Juan County.

One to 6 inches of new snow was expected in southwestern Oklahoma.

Humphrey Warning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) says leftists in Venezuela might demonstrate against the United States when President John F. Kennedy visits the South American nation.

"It is a good guess they'll try something," the lawmaker said last night.

Humphrey added, "Only they are going to find out it will backfire. The good people of Venezuela aren't going to stand for any attempt to discredit or disrupt the official visit of the President of the United States."

'Brink' In Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The opposition heatedly charged a return to dictatorship, broke off negotiations with President Joaquin Balaguer's regime last night and implied renewal of a general strike against Balaguer.

"We are on the edge of disacter," an opposition spokesman said after Balaguer declared the talks seeking a solution to the nation's protracted political crisis had reached a "definite impasse."

An opposition leader warned that the nation was headed down the path of Castro's Cuba.

Dolphin's Secret

PASADENA (UPI) — The dolphin's secret was no longer a secret today.

Scientists announced yesterday they knew how the sleek little mammals ride waves without wiggling a flipper but managed to maintain the speed of a ship.

The mystery has puzzled sailors for centuries.

Scientists said, the dolphin's performance is similar to the surf rider who constantly is "falling" down the slope of an advancing wave. The body is kept rigid.

No More Patience

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru warned parliament today that India's patience toward the Portuguese enclave of Goa was "exhausted."

In a foreign affairs debate, Nehru described Portugal as a colonial power and predicted it would not long be able to maintain its hold on the 1,300 square mile possession. Goa is on India's western coast.

Agreement On Laos

GENEVA (UPI)—The 14-nation conference on Laos removed two major obstacles to a neutrality treaty today with agreements on withdrawal of all foreign troops except the French. This means American military advisers will be among those who must leave.

The 42nd restricted session of the conference agreed on a formula for the withdrawal. The French military advisers would be allowed to stay to advise the new, integrated Laotian army under the second agreement arrived at today.

Agreement on these two points left only two others to be settled at the conference. No formal neutrality declaration can be signed, however, until a delegation representing a united Laotian government arrives here.

Attlee 'Improved'

AMERSHAM, England (UPI) — Former British Prime Minister Lord Attlee, in serious condition, "continued to improve" today in his fight against a perforated ulcer and the effects of a heart attack, hospital officials said.

Chessman Ballet

GOTEBURG, Sweden (UPI) — American choreographer Adam Darius has created a ballet based on the life and death of convict Caryl Chessman.

Darius said yesterday the ballet would end with a scene showing the execution of the dancer depicting Chessman in a gas chamber on stage. The ballet is a protest against capital punishment, Darius said.

The choreographer said he spent two years touring California towns where Chessman lived before he was sentenced to death and began his long legal battle from his Death Row cell at San Quentin.

Youths Wreck U.S. Consulate In Katanga

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — United Nations officials expressed fears today that Katanga authorities had lost control of their troops and would be unable to stop the battle of Elisabethville even if they wanted to.

An anti-American riot by 200 screaming African youths yesterday left the U.S. consulate a shambles, and damaged an American Methodist mission.

Nervous and excitable Katanga gendarmes have begun stopping all whites on the streets because of rumors that some Swedish soldiers smuggled into Elisabethville disguised as civilians.

U.N. military commander Gen. Sean McKeown said in Leopoldville yesterday the United Nations forces in Katanga will be strong enough to end the fighting in "a matter of days" unless the Katangese soldiers take to the bush and start a guerrilla war.

McKeown said Katanga President Moise Tshombe had made indirect peace overtures but "we will ignore them because Tshombe is now unable to stop the fighting."

(In New York, acting U.N. Secretary-General Thant issued a "categorical denial" that the United Nations wanted to force a political solution of the Katanga problem by smashing its military.

("The purpose of the present military operations is to regain and assure our freedom of movement, to restore law and order, and to ensure for the future the United Nations forces and officials in Katanga are not subjected to such attacks . . . " he said.)

DeWitt K. MacDonald Jr., San Rafael attorney, has been appointed by the State Bar of California to a standing committee which will study group and pre-paid legal services, it was announced today.

Convictions Of 'Sit-Ins' Reversed

First Such Cases To Reach Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court overturned today conviction of 16 Negroes who by sit-in demonstrations tried to end launch counter segregation in Baton Rouge, La.

The ruling was given in the first sit-in cases to reach the high tribunal. There have been many such demonstrations in the South.

Chief Justice Warren delivered the unanimous decision.

BROAD QUESTION

Warren said that while the arrested persons had raised broad constitutional questions in their appeals, the court found it unnecessary to decide the wide issues.

Instead, said Warren, the court bases its decision on the ground that the convictions "are so totally devoid of evidenciary support as to render them unconstitutional under the due process clause of the 14th Amendment."

The 16 Negroes, all students of Southern University in Baton Rouge, were convicted under a Louisiana law making it a breach of the peace to "act in such a manner as to unreasonably disturb or alarm the public."

FOUR MONTHS

Each was sentenced to four months in prison, with three months to be suspended on payment of $100 fines.

In three appeals, the Negroes asked a final ruling that their arrests deprived them of rights guaranteed by the due process and equal protection clauses of the Constitution.

Two of the Negroes were arrested at a "white" lunch counter in Sit-man's Drug Store; seven at a similar counter in a Kress chain store; and seven at a "white" lunch counter in the Greyhound bus station in Baton Rouge.

Soviet Aide Expelled From Canada

OTTAWA (UPI)—A military attache at the Soviet Embassy has been expelled from Canada for trying to buy secret documents from a government employee, the external affairs department said today.

The department said Lt. Col. Anatoly F. Loginov, assistant Soviet Embassy military attache, left Canada yesterday. He was ordered expelled on Dec. 7 after the Royal Canadian mounted police caught him in the act of trying to buy secrets, an announcement said.

The department said Loginov had cultivated the friendship of a government employee over an 18-month period. It said he asked for trivial items, but when he made it known he was willing to pay for top secrets the employee went to the officials.

Complete Break Is Reported Between Albania, Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russia and Stalinist Albania were reported today to have broken diplomatic relations in a move likely to worsen relations between the Soviet Union and Communist China.

There was no official Russian confirmation of the break which was reported in an official Albanian telegraph agency broadcast monitored in London.

But informed sources said the break has been in the making since the 22nd Soviety party congress last October.

At the conference, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev denounced Albanian leaders for their Stalinist ways and called for the resignation of Enver Hoxha, chief of the Communist Party in Albania.

The sources said the reported rupture—unprecedented in Russia's relations with Communist countries—is likely to bring an economic boycott of the tiny Adriatic nation by every member of the Communist bloc except Red China.

The closest thing to a break between two Communist countries previously occurred in 1948, when Reds led by late Premier Josef Stalin vilified Yugoslav Marshal Tito as a "Fascist Gangster" and kicked him out of the Cominform. But the ideological dispute never went so far as a severance of diplomatic relations.

According to the sources here, the split between Moscow and Tirana will have a profound effect on relations between the Chinese and other Communist bloc nations outside the U.S.S.R.

Yesterday the official Communist party newspaper Pravda featured a speech by Romanian Communist leader Gheorghiu-Dej in which he endorsed the Soviet stand against Albania and criticized Red China for siding with Hoxha.

Loyalty Oath Ruled Invalid For Teachers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled invalid today Florida's loyalty oath as applied to teachers in public schools.

Justice Stewart delivered the unanimous decision, which found the state laws unconstitutionally vague.

The ruling was given on an appeal by David Walton Cramp Jr., a teacher in Orange County, Fla., for nine years. He lost his job for refusing to take the oath.

Cramp said he was not a Communist or a member of any organization believing in violent overthrow of government. His refusal to take the loyalty oath was based on the belief it violated constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech, thought and association; also the guarantees of due process and equal protection of law.

The Florida law requires all public emploees to swear they are not Communists and not members of organizations which teach violent overthrow of government. The law calls for immediate discharge of any public employee who refuses to take the oath.

Stewart's opinion said the oath requirement is lacking in "terms susceptible of objective measurement."

"Those who take this oath," the justice said, "must swear that they had not in the unending past ever knowingly lent their aid, or support, or advice, or counsel or influence to the Communist party."

Stewart asked, "What do these phrases mean?"

He then went on: "In the not too distant past, Communist party candidates appeared regularly and legally on the ballot in many state and local elections. Elsewhere the Communist party has on occasion endorsed or supported candidates nominated by others. Could one who had ever cast his vote for such a candidate safely subscribe to this legislative oath?"

Ex-Deputy Suspected Of Assault

A former Marin County deputy sheriff was jailed today on suspicion of raping the 8-year-old daughter of a present deputy.

James Baird Jr., 42, a guard at San Francisco International Airport and a Marin deputy until slightly more than two years ago, was arrested at his home at 236 Third Avenue, Daly City, by Daly City police on request of Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos. He was jailed under bail of $2,625, to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon.

"He denies all charges," said Mountanos after questioning Baird for more than two hours.

Baird was booked by Mountanos, Sheriff's Inspector Marco M. Melovich and Novato Police Chief Roy McLaren.

Mountanos said the girl's mother phoned him yesterday to report the alleged violation of her daughter. She said the girl had confided to her Saturday night and she would have to report what she said to her husband.

Mountanos, Melovich and McLaren went to Daly City but Baird was not at home. At their request Chief Roland A. Petrocchi of Daly City Police put a stake-out around Baird's home. Late last night, Petrocchi reported he had apprehended Baird. The three Marin officers picked him up and returned him to San Rafael.

Moutanos said Baird and the deputy and his family had been "close friends."

Baird's wife and mother and father all died within the past year.

Baird served as a deputy sheriff, working out of the Marin City office, from Feb. 15, 1956, to Oct. 31, 1959. He resigned Oct. 16, 1959, giving no reason.

Mountanos said, Baird was a policeman in Daly City, resigning in 1954, and served as a Sausalito policeman in 1955-56 under Mountanos, who was then Sausalito police chief.

Check Your Spine As Well As Your Car

by Dr. Robert W. Pearce

The wise motorist will have his car checked and repaired as soon as any of the important parts begin to show signs of wear and tear. Most car owners know that continued driving of an automobile with a faulty carburetor or distributor will cause damage and inefficiency in other parts of the vehicle.

The same thing happens when disease overtakes us. If we neglect a digestive fault for instance, the intestines, liver, gall bladder, circulatory system, the heart and other organs soon will begin to lose their efficiency because of the extra demand placed upon them.

But because of the body's amazing system of defenses, some time may pass before we notice the symptoms which indicate disease. Symptomatic pain is a warning signal that something is wrong and requires attention.

Most of us agree with the old saying that an "ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure." But how can we be sure of prevention?

The nervous system is the master system of the body. When the flow of nerve energy to any organ or part is blocked, disease will occur in that organ or part. Such interference in the nervous system nearly always occurs in the spine, which carries the main nerve cables.

When a spinal bone or vertebra is pushed out of line by a fall or an accident, it will press, pinch or stretch one or more of the nerves inside or just outside the spine. As a result, the organs affected will not get their proper nerve supply and may become diseased. The obvious answer then is to repair the nerve supply.

Chiropractors specialize in finding and correcting nerve interference in the spine. The adjustments they are able to make with their trained hands are painless and effective.

Dr. R. W. Pearce, D.C., practices the Palmer Method. His office is at 1628 Fifth Ave., San Rafael, GL 3-6201 (Adv.)

Former Zulu Chieftan Accepts Nobel Prize For Peace In Oslo

OSLO (UPI) — Albert John Luthuli, a former Zulu chieftain wearing the robes of his office and a lion-tooth necklace, yesterday became the first African to be awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

Luthuli is a native school teacher from South Africa who for years has led a non-violent battle against his country's apartheid laws. No South African government officials were invited to the impressive ceremonies here.

Luthuli, who is under severe travel restrictions back home, received a 10-day pass to pick up the $49,190 prize.

He said when he applied for a visa a South African government official told him he did not deserve the award.

"This is in fact one of the few occasions where I agreed with the South African government," Luthuli said modestly.

Swedish Ambassador Rolf Edberg accepted on behalf of former U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold the first Nobel Prize to be awarded posthumously. The money will go to a special fund.

Luthuli was not the first Negro to win the coveted prize. The first was American Ralph J. Bunche, who got the 1950 award for helping the United Nations conciliate the fighting between Israel and Egypt in 1948-49.

In Stockholm, the Swedish royal family was on hand to watch three American scientists accept the 1961 awards for medicine, chemistry and physics.

Hungarian-born researcher George Von Bekesy, 63, of Harvard University won the prize for medicine; Melvin Calvin, 50, of the University of California, won the prize for chemistry; and Stanford University physicist Robert Hofstader, 46, was a co-winner in his field.

121 Arrested In Big L.A. Dope Raids

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police and state narcotics agents seized about 200 pounds of marijuana and arrested 121 persons including 11 women during weekend raids in the Los Angeles area.

Investigators said the marijuana would have brought 1.57 million dollars if retailed as cigarettes.

Among those booked on narcotics charges was Anthony Eugene Woods, 32, of Compton, a pilot who told officers he was the father of 16 children. Agents said he used a 20-year-old war surplus training plane to fly dope across the border.

Woods denied the charge. He was booked at county jail on suspicion of selling and possessing marijuana. Authorities said he had a half-pound of marijuana on his person when arrested.

Also booked on suspicion of narcotics possession was Peggy Mathis Woods, 26, who was identified as Woods' common-law wife and mother of five of his children.

Woods told officers he has six children by another common-law wife and five more by what he described as a number of steady girl friends.

The raids climaxed nearly six months of undercover investigation by new police officers who lived and worked with suspected offenders immediately after being graduated from the Police Academy.

Police said the rookie officers purchased more than $5,000 worth of narcotics while posing as addicts.

'Image' Charge Aimed At Brown

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two Republican leaders have charged Gov. Edmund Brown with trying to improve his own political image at the taxpayers' expense.

Criticism of the Democratic governor came yesterday from John Krehbield ,chairman of the GOP State Central Committee, and Assemblyman John Busterud (R.—San Francisco).

Their separate blasts at the governor followed a story in yesterday's San Diego Union that Frank Bragg, public information officer of the State Department of Water Resources, told department publicists in a memo to put Governor Brown's name in all news releases, no matter what the subject matter.

The news story said Bragg issued the memo on instructions from William E. Warne, state director of water resources.

Fred Rupp, Warne's special representative, said in Sacramento that Bragg did issue such a memo. But he said the instructions were not being followed.

"We use the govenor's name where we think it appropriate," Rupp said.

Paper Says It Is Not Backing Nixon Or Anyone In Primary

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A state assemblyman opposing Richard M. Nixon for the GOP gubernatorial nomination says the Copley newspapers have decided not to back Nixon in the primary.

A Copley editor said, however, that it's not Copley policy to endorse any candidate in a contested primary.

The Copley chain strongly backed Nixon in the presidential race last year.

The Copley group publishes several papers in southern California and Illinois. Among them is the San Diego Union.

Republican Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell said the Copley papers had decided not to endorse Nixon, and the Union's editor, Herbert G. Klein, had been ordered not to work in Nixon's behalf.

Klein said the Copley papers won't endorse anyone in the primary and hadn't intended to and he, Klein, hasn't been ordered to do anything.

British Holding Up Bomb Delivery

LONDON (AP) — Britain announced today it will not deliver the 24 half-ton bombs it promised to U.N. forces in Katanga until the United Nations explains its Congo policies more clearly.

The announcement was made in the House of Commons by Edward Heath, lord privy seal and deputy foreign minister, in a stormy session on the Katanga flareup.

Heath stressed that Britain supports the general U.N. objective of conciliating rival Congo factions and removing foreign mercenaries from the forces of President Moise Tshombe. But he said the British government is now "seriously disturbed by the way the fighting has developed."

The British offered the 24 half-ton bombs to the U.N. forces last week but stipulated that they would have to be used only for defense. Sharp questions arose here and in the Congo as to how air bombs could be used for defense.

Reddy answers "most asked" questions about electric blankets

Q. Do you really sleep better with an electric blanket?

A. Almost everyone does. An electric blanket spreads just the right warmth evenly over the entire bed. And with just one light covering, there's no "blanket wrasslin' " . . . you sleep soundly, wake up refreshed!

Q. How do you control the warmth?

A. An electric blanket lets you dial the sleeping comfort that suits you best. Just turn the blanket on each night—the control does the rest, automatically maintaining the temperature you set.

Q. What about dual controls?

A. You can buy an electric blanket for a double bed with two controls—one control for each half of the blanket. This way, husband and wife can each select the sleeping comfort desired.

Q. How do you make a bed with an electric blanket?

A. Some models have contour corners for perfect fit. Others spread across the bed like an ordinary blanket. Either way, bedmaking is easier with just one blanket.

Q. Can they be washed?

A. Yes—just follow the manufacturer's instructions. Made of cotton, rayon, nylon and the new synthetic fibers, they dry soft, fluffy and ready to spread.

Q. What sizes are available?

A. You can get "twin," "double" and "king" size (twice twin-bed size). Both single and dual controls are available on double bed sizes.

Q. How much does an electric blanket cost?

NEIGHBORS AND FRIENDS—Five of the 12 panel members at forum on neighborhood integration last night under auspices of Marin Sommittee for Fair Play in Housing were (from left, standing) Mrs. James Hirabayashi and Mrs. Robert Gibson of Mill Valley; (seated) J. Barry Watkinson of Terra Linda, James Hirabayashi, and Dr. Granville C. Coggs of Terra Linda. The Gibsons and Hirabayashis are neighbors, as are the Watkinsons and Coggses.

Another Hearing Set On Zoning

A second public hearing on rezoning of 24 acres at the end of Manuel Freitas Parkway near Terra Linda will be heard before the San Rafael Planning Commission tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

The rezoning from unclassified to planned community would permit development of a 215-unit housing development by Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Wheeler and Sanford B. Weiss. The project will be known as Terra Linda Meadows.

According to the applicants, more than 12 acres of the parcel would be devoted to park and community landscaped areas. The dwellings would range in size from single- family to 16-unit buildings. Designers of the project are architects Welton Beckett and Associates. No opposition to the rezoning was offered at the first public hearing on Nov. 28.

Architectural approval will be sought by Tom Hotchkin of Hotchkin Construction Co. for a 49,000 square-foot shopping center on Medway Avenue near Francisco Boulevard.

Approval of the plans were withheld at the Nov. 28 meeting pending revision of plans to include rear access to the building and increased off-street parking.

Architectural approval will be requested for three apartment developments: (1) a 20-unit apartment on Sonoma Street near Canal Street, (2) a 10-unit development on Ross Street between Clark and Marin Streets and, (3) a 12-unit addition to the Tropicana Apartments on Bayo Vista Way.

The commissioners will hold a discussion on progress of city-wide off-street parking plans.

Members Of Three Races In Marin See Little Of Integration Problem

By THERON A. NEWELL

Marin County does not have much of a problem in integrated neighborhoods, but real estate dealers still refuse to sell to minority groups.

These were the opinions of people at a panel discussion last night at the Tamalpais Center Women's Club, sponsored by the Marin Committee for Fair Play in Housing.

Members of the panel of 12 came from neighborhoods in Mill Valley, Corte Madera and Terra Linda where members of three races live side by side and carry on the same social and community activities.

Panel members who were next-door neighbors, friends, and who mixed together socially, laughed at the thought of problems among themselves. However, they agreed that there were some misgivings at first when the neighborhoods were integrated.

"It's so commonplace that maybe we are creating a problem where it doesn't exist," said Mrs. Helen Gibson of Mill Valley, who is Caucasian.

Dr. Robert S. Gibson, her husband, is Negro. He said a real estate salesman asked him, before selling a house to James Hirabayashi, if he objected to an Oriental moving into the neighborhood.

Mrs. De Reath Collins of Mill Valley said that when she and her husband bought their house, real estate men offered to buy it back for a "reasonable profit."

Lucile Dandelet, committee chairman, told of the welcome the neighbors gave the Collinses, both when they first moved in and when they returned after an absence of two years.

Real estate salesmen then came in for their share of blame from panel members and people in the audience.

"Real estate men won't sell to minority groups," said Mrs. Gertrude Jones of Mill Valley.

Mrs. Priscilla Smith of Mill Valley said the committee was working to get real estate dealers to list whether a house could be sold to a member of a minority group.

Dr. Granville C. Coggs, a member of the panel, said he moved to Terra Linda because Eichler sold homes to minority groups—and because he was able to buy without a down payment.

One man who said he is a real estate dealer, but who refused to give his name, said he advocated selling to minority groups, but if this became known publicly, tremendous pressure would be put on him to change his stand.

The meeting was held on Human Rights Day and in observance of the second anniversary of the founding of the Marin Committee for Fair Play in Housing.

Julian W. Mack II, Terra Linda attorney, moderated the meeting.

Panel members were: Mrs. Elizabeth Pierce of Corte Madera, Mrs. Jacqueline Branch of Corte Madera, J. Barry Watkinson of Terra Linda, Donald Case of Mill Valley, Mrs. Caroline Robinson of Mill Valley, Dr. and Mrs. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Hirabayashi, Mrs. Smith and Dr. Coggs.

Rear Adm. Boundy Retires, Moves To Marin County

Rear Adm. J. W. Boundy (Ret.), who was chief of the Bureau of supplies and accounts in Washington, D.C., and, during the past six months, special assistant to the secretary of the Navy, has retired and moved to Marin County.

He resides with his wife, Louise, at 600 Appleberry drive in Marinwood. Boundy, who retired as of Dec. 1, said "Marin County offered the type of living we wanted for our home."

The Boundys have two grown children, a daughter, Marilyn, who lives in Southern California, and a son, Richard, on the East Coast.

Boundy was in the Navy 31 years, serving in the Philippines, China and Japan before World War II. Twice he was fleet supply officer of the Pacific fleet, serving during World War II with Adm. Chester Nimitz. He has been special adviser in London.

During his career, Boundy said, he was frequently called "Mutiny" by his colleagues but added that this will probably be dropped now that he is returning to civilian life.

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

Presto Shows the new look in telephone numbers

All-numeral phone numbers come to Marin County

All listings in the April, 1962, Marin County telephone directory will have all-numeral phone numbers. Numerals are being substituted for letters in everyone's number. Since the numerals correspond to the same dial openings as the letters they replace, dialing itself will be unchanged.

The changeover to the new type of numbers is taking place gradually:

- Anyone getting telephone service in Marin County for the first time, moving to a new address, or getting a new phone number, is now being given an all-numeral number.
- New dial number plates have been mailed to most Marin County customers. Installers are calling on customers with five or more phones to change the number plates. Also, Information Operators have your all-numeral phone number. However, since no dialing change is involved, people will still reach you if they dial your number as listed in the present Marin County telephone directory.

These new phone numbers are part of a new nation-wide numbering system called All Number Calling. It's needed to keep ahead of America's growth. Twenty years ago there were less than 23 million phones in the U.S. Right now there are more than 74 million, and by 1975 there may be more than 160 million phones. This growth is rapidly exhausting letter combinations for usable prefix names.

By changing to an all-numeral system, enough numbers will be available to keep up with telephone growth in Marin County and the rest of the Nation.

Sonoma Dam Money Is Recommended

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Clem Miller of Corte Madera said today the U. S. Engineers have recommended construction of a 42.5 million-dollar multiple-purpose dam and reservoir on Dry Creek in Sonoma County.

Dry Creek is a tributary of the Russian River. It joins the river at Healdsburg, 14 miles below the site of the proposed dam.

The site is 25 miles northwest of Santa Rosa.

Miller said the recommendation was made by the San Francisco district headquarters of the U. S. Engineers.

The purpose of the dam, Miller said, is to protect Dry Creek and the lower 30 miles of Russian River, including the Guerneville resort area, from periodic severe flooding; to provide a supplemental water supply for future residential and industrial growth in Sonoma and northern Marin counties, and to provide a major outdoor recreation facility and enhanced sport fishery.

As now envisioned the project would be more than twice as large as Lake Mendocino, impounded by Coyote Valley Dam on the Russian River near Ukiah.

The dam would be 284 feet high, just below the confluence of Warm Springs Creek with Dry Creek.

Miller has proposed that the new dam be named for former Rep. Clarence Lea of Santa Rosa.

RADIOACTIVE CLOUD FORMED

'Peace Bomb' Reported 70 Per Cent Successful

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP)—Scientists counted blessings of knowledge from the first underground atomic "peace bomb" explosion yesterday despite the escape of a cloud of radioactive gas.

They reported 70 per cent success in getting data on major scientific programs, but major mysteries remain.

They judged the steaming radioactive cloud hadn't hurt anybody or anything, although its unexpected fallout partially blockaded nearly 300 observers.

Scientists pushed ahead to learn exactly what happened when they detonated the world's first known nuclear explosion intended solely to find peaceful uses for the furies of A-bombs and H-bombs.

The specially designed five-kiloton atomic device was detonated a quarter-mile underground. It was in a chamber at the end of a buttonhook tunnel dug 1,000 feet through salt rock from a vertical mine shaft. This Project Gnome hole alone cost one million dollars, the total drill nearly six million dollars.

A main objective was to learn what happens when a nuclear blast, equivalent to 5,000 tons of TNT, occurs in salt rock. Scientists hoped it might form a cavity partly full of molten salt and steam.

The earth shock produced a moderate earthquake in Carlsbad, 23 miles away, where a waitress saw "an itty-bitty Santa Claus shaking on a drug store counter." It didn't harm the Carlsbad Caverns, 34 miles west, or potash mines, kept empty of people when the blast detonated.

Seismic measurements obtained near and far may help show the difference between the "signature" of an earthquake and a secret nuclear underground bomb test.

The blast apparently turned the chamber room into a leaky boiler, said Dr. Phillip Randolph, deputy technical director of Gnome.

Somehow, the leak sent radioactive gasses up the mine shaft, a white steam turning into an invisible but quickly dying cloud of radioactive gas. A filter in the shaft head apparently stopped solid particles, said Dr. Randolph.

Atomic Energy Commission officials said the gas swept away over essentially unpopulated areas. But for more than three hours they blockaded the direct road to Carlsbad until radioactivity across the road died down. And "for good housekeeping," the AEC washed seven cars caught between blockade points.

The highest radiation rating inside any car was 15 milliroentgens per hour and declining, said OEC's Dr. Gordon Dunning. He said a person could live the rest of his life in the car and get a total dose of only 75 milliroentgens. A thoroughly safe lifetime exposure to radiation has been set at 35 roentgens, not milliroentgens.

Test director James Reeves said "to the best of my knowledge at the present time, no one was injured."

While the dissipating gaseous radioactivity was small, radiation in the mine shaft was terrific—one million roentgens at the bottom an hour after blast, Dr. Randolph estimated. Five hours after the blast, it was about 40,000 roentgens. A lethal human dose is 1,000 roentgens.

This will delay attempts to recover a special wheel, near the bottom of the shaft, which measured neutrons flying from the blast chamber through a 22-inch wide vacuum pipe.

The wheel is apparently intact, and that experiment apparently worked, Dr. Randolph said.

In a day or two, a drilling rig will start boring to learn if a cavity was actually formed.

An experiment to capture radioisotopes flying up the vacuum pipe, which peered into the blast chamber from the surface, also apparently worked. But a three-foot thick concrete slab on which instruments stood, was tilted over, and the ground above the chamber apparently heaved up a few feet.

The nuclear device, using new principles to make peace time explosives cheaper, also apparently worked quite well.

Teener Hospital Aid Is Told In Article

How a volunteer program by Marin teen-agers to provide help to patients of Marin Convalescent and Rehabilitation Hospital spread to a number of other hospitals is told in the December issue of the Red Cross Journal.

The article by Maurice Flagg reports the program began in June, 1958, when members of the Marin high school council of the Red Cross began visits to the hospital for the aged, chronically ill and those needing special therapy for accident injuries.

Later Sonoma State Hospital asked whether some of the teen-agers would like to serve there. Now the program operates also at the Central Medical Hospital, Marin County Hospital, Hillhaven Hospital, Marindale School for the Orthopedically Handicapped and with the Marin Aid to Retarded Children program.

About 250 of the 400 teen-agers volunteering in Marin County high school Red Cross activities last summer served in the hospital programs, the article said.

Volunteers were obtained through appeals relayed by teacher-sponsors at San Rafael, Sir Francis Drake and Tamalpais High Schools.

The six-page article is illustrated with a sketch and several photographs by San Rafael photographer Ken Molino.

Opera Star Thebom, Texas Surgeon Wed

NEW YORK (UPI)—Opera star Blanche Thebom and Texas neurosurgeon Dr. Albert D'Errico were married yesterday as close friends from the worlds of medicine and music looked on.

"It's snowing outside, but I feel warm and glowing inside," said the Metropolitan Opera singer. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Herman L. Barberry of New York's Marble Collegiate Church at the Central Park West apartment of record and TV personality Mitch Miller.

After the ceremony, the 46-year-old bride and 57-year-old groom kissed over wine glasses. The couple plan a month-long honeymoon that will take them to Italy and Egypt. Miss Thebom will return then for engagements at the Met.

Among those present were singers Marian Anderson, Zinka Milanov and Thelma Votipka and Dallas opera general director Lawrence Kelly.

Dr. William J. German, professor of neurological surgery at Yale University's School of Medicine and Dr. Edgar Kahn, chief of neurological surgery at the University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor, also attended.

Deadline On Taxes Is Midnight

Marin property owners have until midnight tonight to pay their first instalment taxes without penalty, County Treasurer M. F. Donohue said today. The Thursday Independent-Journal had reported the deadline as 5 p.m.

The treasurer-tax collector's office in Room 116 of the courthouse will close at 5 p.m. today as usual, but payments in envelopes postmarked before midnight will avert penalty, he said.

As of this morning $9,036,000 out of "a possible 12 million dollars" had been received, he said. This means nearly two and a half million dollars in payments had been processed since last Thursday night.

Payments "are in line with other years," he reported.

Man Who Threatened Stepson Shot To Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Joaquin Barajas, 28, was shot to death at his home yesterday morning by a police officer who heard him threaten to kill his 2-year-old stepson.

Patrolmen Donald Taylor and Donald Burke were summoned to Barajas' apartment 447 Tehama Street by his wife, Marcella, 22, who told them Barajas had been on a drinking spree and was threatening the child.

Barajas greeted the officers at the door with an 8-inch butcher knife, threw a lamp and candlestick at them, then slammed the door and disappeared inside.

Taylor said he heard Mrs. Barajas crying that he was going to kill the boy, Ronald, so he fired a warning shot through the closed door. Barajas was wounded fatally and died a half hour later.

Captain William Longafelter, Taylor's superior, said the shooting was "unfortunate but justified."

"They didn't have to shoot him," his widow said.

Corte Madera Public Hearing Set Tonight On Zone Law

The Corte Madera Planning Commission will hold a public hearing today at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall to consider a change in the zoning ordinance concerning the sibe of temporary real estate signs for large developments.

The planners will consider the request from Karp Development Co. of San Francisco to build a 109-unit motel next to the Edgewater Inn. The application has been approved by the board of design.

They will also review the town's zoning ordinance provisions concerning motels.

Commissioners C. W. Thomas and Harold B. Wagstaff will make a progress report on their study of the off-street parking and loading facilities ordinance.

New TB Food Handler Case

Another new case of tuberculosis was discovered last week because the owner of a food handling establishment insisted that employees have minifilm chest x-rays or tuberculin tests, the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn, reported.

The routine screening showed one employee with active TB. This was in an incorporated city. The new case brings the total of new TB cases among food handlers to six this year, acording to Mrs. Geneva W. Berry, executive director of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn.

The association is urging all cities to adopt an ordinance requiring TB examinations for food handlers.

The Great Plains has suffered often from grass hoppers. The most spectacular invasion occurred in the 1870s. Successive waves of grasshoppers ate grain, vegetables, tree leaves and weeds. When greenery was gone the voracious insects nibbled clothing, harness and pitchfork handles.

Boy, 4, Runs In Front Of Car—Bumped

A 4-year-old Marin City boy received only a bump on the head when he ran in front of a car yesterday.

Robert Thomas Jr., 4, son of Robert Thomas Sr. of 213 Drake Avenue, Marin City, ran in front of a car driven by Dorothy Marie Hines, 23, of 409 Drake Avenue, Marin City, California Highway Patrol reported. He appeared suddenly in front of a car parked before 281 Drake Avenue.

Robert was treated at Marin General Hospital.

Unfamiliarity with a new car, according to the victim, contributed to a roll-over on Highway 101 a mile north of Novato Saturday night.

Burl Ernest Gibson of 1821 Petaluma-Lakeville Highway, a clerk in San Francisco, told the California Highway Patrol that another vehicle cut in sharply as he was northbound. He braked, swerved off the road to the right, and skidded 150 feet. Gibson was thrown out as the car overturned.

He was taken to Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital with face cuts and a broken left shoulder, then transferred to Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco where his condition today was good.

BETTER PROGRAM

Public Assistance Changes Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff announced today 10 administrative changes in the federal-state public assistance program. He said they are aimed at eliminating abuses, helping people get off relief, and strengthening family life.

Ribicoff told a news conference the changes, approved by President John F. Kennedy, are the first steps in a broad program for welfare revision.

Legislative changes will be proposed to Congress next year, he said, and further administrative changes are also under study, but he did not detail these.

The changes, in brief, will require that:

Each state establish a special unit responsible for locating deserting parents of children who are applicants for or recipients of public assistance. The special unit will seek to reunite families whenever feasible and to obtain financial support. And

State aid plans include a definition of fraud in accordance with state law as it relates to receipt of assistance payments; strengthening of state administrative procedures for identifying, investigating, evaluating, and referring for legal action cases in which there may be fraud by assistance applicants or recipients.

Hancuffed Man Finally Gets Free

You've heard the old joke, "lock him up and throw away the key."

Sausalito police Saturday morning didn't go quite that far; they just handcuffed their man and merely lost the key.

Richard Fay, 33, a plumber from 20 Cazneau Avenue, didn't mind being booked on suspicion of drunkenness, disturbing the peace, and hitting a police officer nearly as much as being stuck with the handcuffs, with no relief in sight. When officers left him at the jail in handcuffs and walked away, Fay let out a howl for bail bondsman Joseph Pecora.

It was a simple matter for Pecora to post the $971 bail. But freeing his man from the handcuffs was out of his line. Pecora let out a howl for San Rafael blackmith Harold Hart.

Hart came running in with a pair of enormous snips and cut the handcuffs off Fay.

The other man, caught fighting with Fay in front of the Four Winds, had an easier time. George Anderson Jr., 33, a marine mechanic of 305 Richardson Street, Sausalito, was booked on suspicion of drunkenness and disturbing the peace. The only thing that held him back was $131 bail, which Pecora promptly posted.

Officers Robert Lewis and Howard Williams reported that Fay punched Lewis on the jaw when officers tried to stop the argument between the two men.

Recall Group Sees Jury 'Harassment'

A group of leaders in the Recall Blair campaign will seek legal advice as to "a citizen's right of protection from jury service harassment," Leslie Hood of Mill Valley, vice chairman of the Recall Blair Committee, said today.

Decision to hire a lawyer came at a weekend meeting of the group, said Hood.

Twenty-eight leaders in the campaign which resulted in recall last Tuesday of County Supervisor J. Walter Blair have received notices their names have been drawn for jury service, members of the group said.

Hood said his wife, who is one of those called, would try to arrange an interview for herself and others prominent in the campaign with Judge Thomas F. Keating, presiding judge of Marin Superior Court.

"This isn't a case of fighting jury duty, by any means," said Hood. "There are, however, too many coincidences about the selection of so many in our group and it raises the point that we seemingly have no assurance that anyone won't be called every week of all 52 weeks.

"That so many who opposed Supervisor Blair were summoned by County Clerk George S. Jones, a strong Blair backer, certainly creates presumption of a revenge action and we feel we must find out our legal rights and protections," declared Hood.

Hood said that a quick check of 10 of the 18 directors of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs indicated that five of the 10 had received recent jury calls.

Morris Finisy, head of the council, said he would check on this at a council meeting scheduled for tomorrow night.

Four members of the original recall committee of 12 are lawyers, ineligible for jury duty, said Hood.

Little Boy Back In School All Patched Up After Wreck

Eleven-year-old Robert J. David of Mill Valley went to school today as usual even though he had a two-inch square patch on his head as result of an automobile accident yesterday.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. David of 61 Meadow Road, was on his way to Sunday School at Peace Lutheran Church at 9:45 a.m. He was riding in the car of Betty Lou Urbais, 30, of 12 Lomita Drive, with five other youngsters.

Mrs. Urbais told Patrolman John Castellani she was driving west on Blithedale Avenue near Camino Alto when "without warning," a car in front stopped and she was unable to brake soon enough to void hitting it.

Her 6-year-old daughter, Lauren, was thrown under the instrument panel, Mrs. Urbais said, getting a scratched chin and bumped head. The David boy was thrown against the windshield and cut the right side of his head, a two-by-two inch chunk of skin and hair lodging in the splintered glass.

Police Chief Dan Terzich, with a screwdriver, removed the skin, it was placed in a bottle of alcohol. At Marin General Hospital, doctors grafted it back in place in two-hour operation.

Bumped and shaken up were David's sister, Pamela; Charles and Jeanne Snyder, and Charles Collingwood.

Lucy Virginia Curtis, 28, of San Francisco, the driver ahead of the Uhbais station wagon told police that two cars ahead of her stopped without warning.

U.N. Broke, Deficit At $107 Million

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United Nations is broke and heading for bankruptcy, Acting Secretary-General U Thant announced today.

He estimated the U. N. year-end deficit in 20 days will total 107.5 million dollars and that by next June 30 it will be around 170 million dollars, with only 40 million dollars collections in sight for the first six months of 1962.

Thant told the Assembly budgetary committee in a personal appearance "it is imperative that the General Assembly take appropriate action to establish financial responsibility and resources, seriously and soon."

A step toward establishing the legal basis for Thant's plan was taken by the committee immediately after he spoke. It voted 31-10, with 20 abstentions, to ask the World Court for an opinion whether the Soviet Union and other countries have the right to refuse payment of their assessed share of the Congo operations cost. The Soviet bloc is assessed about 20 per cent of the Congo and Middle East operation.

The United States pays its Congo assessment of nearly 33 million dollars plus more than 15 million dollars to help defray 50 per cent of more of the assessments of small nations.

France, South Africa and Portugal also have refused to pay their share of the Congo costs.

U.N. Group Approves Proposal For Space

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The main U.N. Political Committee today gave unanimous approval to a broad program for international outer space cooperation worked out by the United States and the Soviet Union.

The agreement ended a three-year deadlock which had paralyzed the U.N. Outer Space Committee and blocked all efforts toward the joint study of outer space problems.

The approved plan was the first step toward internationalizing outer space and prohibiting its exploitation by individual nations. It accepted the principle that international law should extend to all space and that no celestial body should be brought under national sovereignty.

A deadlock was broken when the United States and the Soviet Union agreed on a formula for expanding the U.N. Outer Space Committee from 24 to 28 members to give wider representation to Communist and nonaligned countries. The Soviet Union gave its demands for a troika arrangement giving equal representation to Western, Communist and nonaligned nations.

Under the new agreement, the committee will have three new African members and Communist Outer Mongolia. This will give it 12 Western members, eight Communist and eight nonaligned. The new African countries are Chad, Morocco and Sierra Leone.

Many valuable prizes will be awarded winners in the competition. Entries in the contest will close on Wednesday next week. Further information may be secured from Hoag, 100 Bayo Vista Way, San Rafael, or McKinley, 109 Melville Avenue, San Anselmo. The contest will include five other bay counties and will be limited to residences only.

The Outdoor Christmas Tree Assn was organized in 1926 by the late Clarence F. Pratt who was prompted to form the association by hearing of the pleasure a sick child had in viewing the Pratt's beautifully lighted outdoor Christmas tree.

Ford Acquires Assets Of Philco Corp.

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI)—Ford Motor Co. today acquired the business and assets of Philco Corp. and will operate the firm as a wholly-owned subsidiary which retains the name Philco Corp.

Ford chairman of the board Henry Ford II and company president John Dykstra announced that Irving A. Duffy has been elected chairman of Philco Corp. and Charles E. Beck has been elected president of the subsidiary.

Duffy is a Ford director and director of the company's general products group. Beck was director of Ford's business planning office.

The acquisition of Philco marks Ford's second move this year into the automotive supplier field.

Earlier in the year, Ford acquired use of the trade name "Autolite" and part of the manufacturing facilities of Electric Autolite Co., Toledo, Ohio.

The U. S. attorney general's office recently started proceedings aimed at forcing Ford to divest itself of the Autolite holdings on grounds the acquisition by Ford lessened competition in spark plug, battery and other electrical accessory fields.

Philco gives Ford an entry into the appliance and electronics fields, as well as a car radio supply source of its own.

Cigar-Smoking Thief Breaks Into Shop

A cigar-smoking burglar broke into the Western Boat Shop at 101 Third Street in San Rafael sometime Saturday night, San Rafael police reported.

The burglar, who had gained entry by prying open a rear door, took 25 cigars from a box and some small change, police said. The open door was discovered at 12:28 a.m. Sunday by an officer on routine patrol.

Lightning Killed 500 On U.S. Golf Courses

WAKEFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—An estimated 500 persons were killed by lightning on the nation's golf courses this year according to a statistical projection by the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co.

Furthermore, a special survey showed that stepping onto a golf course can be a risky business in almost any kind of weather.

There were about 15,000 injuries, about half caused by balls driven by "trigger happy" players. Half the injured were players, 25 per cent caddies and the rest workmen or passing motorists the survey indicated.

American Mutual vice president John O. Nilan, curious about the accident frequency on golf courses, mailed a questionnaire to 1,000 clubs throughout the country.

He said 200 replied and that projected statistics showed that lightning caused about 100 deaths for the 1,000 club, or about 500 for the estimated 5,000 United States golf courses.

(The National Golf Foundation says there are over 6,000 regular courses now in operation with about an additional 500 par-three courses.)

Nilan said his company had only a slight business interest in the accident frequency of this type. However, some persons are insured against such injury under a general "homeowners" policy.

Nilan said there may be surprise at the number of lightning fatalities but that golf courses are "a very likely place" for such occurrences.

RECALL BLAIR GROUP TELLS COST, DISBANDS

A total of $4,944.36 contributed by 315 individuals was spent by the "Recall Blair Committee" in its campaign culminating in last week's recall of county Supervisor J. Walter Blair, it was announced today by Franklin J. McClain of Alto, committee chairman.

McClain said that this worked out to an average contribution of $15.70 and expressed gratification over "this grass roots financial support."

"The committee disbanded this weekend," he said. "In our final statement we would like to make clear that we felt and feel Walter Blair was a man of sincerity who held his convictions honestly.

"We strongly differed with those convictions but we always respected Mr. Blair as an individual. Our respect was increased by the clean and above-board manner in which he conducted his campaign."

Soviet Ambassador Takes Issue With Kennedy View

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov took issue with President John F. Kennedy and said today that those who believe the Soviet Union wants to communize the world are mistaken.

The diplomat, in a speech to a National Press Club luncheon, also said that guessing about a split between the Soviet Union and Red China is nothing but "wishful thinking."

He said erection of the wall dividing Berlin was a defensive measure, changes of Europe's existing borders are not only not negotiable, but they "may cause war."

He added the idea of internationalizing the autobahn connecting West Germany with Berlin—advanced by Kennedy in his interview with Investia editor Alexei Adzhubei in November—"can hardly be considered seriously."

The "free" city of West Berlin proposed by the Soviets "would be better with United Nations troops instead of any troops of the four great powers," Menshikov said.

When full grown, the ocelot is from 42 to 48 inches in length, stands 16 to 18 inches high at the shoulder and weighs 25 to 35 pounds.

Goldwater Lambastes Complaining Reservists

MADRID (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) said today U.S. military reservists who complain about being called back to duty are "just a lot of bitching freeloaders who wanted some extra income."

The conservative Republican senator, here as part of a tour of duty as a brigadier general in the Air Force reserve, was critical of reservists' complaints at a news conference.

"This senator," Goldwater said, "has received no complaints from reservists called up in his state of Arizona. Those who do complain are just a lot of bitching freeloaders who wanted some extra income."

Goldwater said he was referring to reservists who collected pay for 48 drill periods a year to keep in readiness for active duty, then "griped" when called upon to serve.

He made his statement in answer to a question about morale among troops called up for temporary duty.

The graying one-time combat pilot, now a possible Republican presidential nominee in 1964, flew into the U.S. air base at nearby Torrejon yesterday.

He was accompanied by Sens. Howard W. Cannon (D-Nev.) and Jack R. Miller (R-Iowa) and Rep. Jack H. Dominick (R-Colo.). All are Air Force reservists.

Transit Deadline May Catch Up With Bridge Review

We in the newspaper business are well acquainted with deadlines and the need to meet them. Sometimes, however, public agencies don't seem to understand their importance.

Thus it is that the Golden Gate Bridge directors are dilly-dallying with appointment of the engineering review board while the inexorable calendar is marking off days which by law regulate a number of deadlines.

The immediate problem is that a time schedule was set in motion when on Oct. 27 the rapid transit district submitted a four-county transit system to the supervisors of the district's five counties. Marin is not in the transit system because there is an engineering dispute as to whether the Golden Gate Bridge can safely handle rapid transit trains.

To settle this dispute, the bridge directors have decided to hire an engineering review board to study conflicting opinions. This was a fine decision on their part. But now they are taking too much time in appointing the three men for the job.

Before them, the bridge directors have the names of 13 outstanding engineers. Their job is to select three of them. But the bridge's rapid transit committee hasn't even set the date for meeting to discuss the engineers' qualifications. And the clock ticks on.

They certainly will have to allow the reviewing engineers adequate time to study all the data, and they can't expect much work out of them over the Christmas holidays. Yet they continue to delay.

And here comes that deadline.

The basic one is March 22, the last day that the transit board can act to get a bond issue on the June ballot, a thing to which the directors are dedicated.

If the review board should find unquestionably that the bridge can carry rapid transit, the transit district would resubmit to the supervisors a five-county system. This would take a minimum of six weeks, moving the deadline up to Feb. 6. But the bridge directors would need at least some time to discuss allowing transit on the bridge even if it is engineeringly safe. Two weeks seems impossibly short for such a decision, but supposing the directors speeded their consideration; they might make it. This would move the deadline back to mid-January.

We're not saying even this is a feasible deadline on which to work. But at least it is a possible deadline. Unless the bridge directors appoint the review board immediately, they won't even be able to report before this deadline, much less an earlier one.

The reason we're so interested is that Marin County must make up its mind. The county supervisors this afternoon probably set Dec. 26 for public hearing on the four-county system. For Marin, this is merely a legal requirement, for we have little choice. Certainly we can't approve a rapid transit system when we aren't included in it.

But if we reject it, we must ready ourselves to get out of the district between April 27 and May 27. That's the law, unless it is amended.

That's why we're so anxious that the review board report in time for the five-county plan to go on the ballot. We don't want to get out of the district without all the facts before us.

By Any Other Name . . .

"A rose by any other name smells as sweet." So wrote someone, probably Shakespeare.

But old William hadn't counted on our modern rose breeders. In the process of making roses bigger and showier, like small cabbages, they have inadvertently bred much of the fragrance out of them.

The old-timers who claim that roses smelled sweeter when they were younger are telling the truth. Even the rose growers admit it. They are now concentrating their efforts on putting the smell back into the flowers.

Perhaps before long a rose will once more smell like a rose.

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist wouldn't know if he didn't open his mail:

It costs you less now to bump a cloud than it cost your father a generation ago to go the same distance by road. Travel gets cheaper all the time.

One proof: A man paid 12 cents a mile to travel by stage coach in the Old West. No bus, air or rail service today could get coach customers at half that price.

Religion on the gain: One of the largest publishers of Christmas cards says that 35 per cent of the three billion cards sold this year will have a religious motif. The same firm says that 15 years ago less than 5 per cent of the cards sold had a religious character.

How they started: Van Johnson was a real estate salesman. Bill Bendix a grocery clerk. Fredric March a bank teller. Marlon Brando an actor.

Our quotable Notables: "The only difference between a rut and a grave is their dimensions."—Ellen Glasgow.

Do you intend to buy a dog? A reader warns that many pups are born deaf and you should snap your fingers behind one before purchasing it. The only breed I know that inherits deafness is the dalmatian, or spotted coach dog, and some say that might be a self-defense against the conversation it hears in fire houses.

Enough about dogs. What do you think about your boss? One survey found that a boss who props his feet upon the desk is the best and easiest to work for. My judgment: He might be the wisest boss, but the hardest to work for—because he could exercise his leisure to make the hard and right decision.

ON THE PROBLEM of women: Another so-called scientific survey claims to find that wives who sleep the soundest have the most affectionate husbands.

Boyle walks in his sleep. What does this prove?

Signs to live by: This one is from the bumper of the car ahead: "Careful, I'm not as good a driver as you think you are."

ITEMS TO live by: There are more lady than men dentists in Athens, Greece. Neuclophobia is a new word coined to describe fear of the atomic age. If you send a buck to CARE, N.Y. 16, N.Y., you may feed abroad for a month a family of four you will never see.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Parents Should Entertain Youths

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I should like to commend Ann Courter, Fairfax for her letter in the Dec. 6 issue of the I-J for her objections to the movie "Never On Sunday." One could tell by the title of such a movie it wouldn't be fit to look at.

Why don't parents provide good, wholesome amusement and entertainment for their children, such as good books, good music and good pictures?

Good pictures on the walls of our homes can have a lasting impression for good on our children.

We try to decrease the delinquency among the youth of our land but what are the parents doing about it in their homes?

Parents who have liquor in their homes are to blame when their children start to use it too. One drop of liquor is one drop too much. Beverage alcohol is a mocker. It is either Christ or chaos in one's life.

The 'Much' In World Law

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Since a question has been raised about the "much" that we would have to give up under world government, I would appreciate the opportunity to enlarge on this point.

A. C. O'Brien seemed to infer in his (?) letter of Dec. 5 that I had been talking of "peace at any price." This is far from the case. I was talking of peace through enforceable world law.

What we would have to give up, quite obviously, is what any individual in any group has to yield—SOME of his own wishes, when these seriously interfere with the rights or wishes of others. This NECESSARY limitation of individual freedom of action begins in the family; and on a more complex level, I think our own United States government with constitutional safeguards is an inspiring example of what can be done.

Certainly each state wants to be sovereign; and to the largest extent possible, it is left so. But wherever a state's "rights" would threaten other states or infringe on basic human rights, the federal government can and does intervene.

When I say "much," Mr. O'Brien, I am considering the fact that many Americans are highly resistant to even our own federal or distant government. They fear loss of local control and often resent paying the taxes necessary to support this larger governing body. They are justified in being watchful, but who would seriously contend that this central government was actually unnecessary or undesirable?

If we could help establish a smiliar government among nations, we would have to overcome another prejudice. The one that says we are all right and "they" are all wrong. Almost always, in any dispute, there is something to be said for both sides. It is entirely possible that decisions and judgments in a world government would sometimes go against us. Learning to accept this is another part of the "much."

Still I think this "much" is little compared to the alternative. War could only "settle" the questions by blowing or burning most of us off the earth. One might almost say if men haven't learned the futility of war by this time, let them destroy each other. But what a shame to kill the children and rob the future too!

BENNETT CERF

Many of the late Jim Thurber's finest humorous pieces were devoted to affectionate chronicles of the oddballs in his family. Of his mother, he wrote, "For some reason or other, during storms, she always took the telephone receiver off the hook and let it hang. And she lived the latter years of her life in the horrible suspicion that electricity was dripping invisibly all over the house. It leaked, she contended, out of empty sockets."

Thurber's great-uncle met with a unique fate. "He caught," noted Mr. Thurber, "the same disease that was killing off a lot of chestnut trees one year and passed away. It was the only case in history where a tree doctor had to be called in to spray a person."

Ingrid Bergman likes to tell the manner in which she learned that she had won one of Hollywood's coveted Oscars. She was relaxing in a warm tub in her Paris apartment, with her portable radio turned on full blast. Suddenly she heard the mellifluous voice of Cary Grant intoning, "We all send our love to you, Ingrid, and wish we could be with you wherever you are."

Herb Stein knows a tycoon in Fort Worth who's so rich he owns an unlisted telephone company.

Castro's Admission Clarifies Issue For American States

WASHINGTON—Now that Fidel Castro has admitted to deceiving the Cuban people and revealed that he is foisting a Communist dictatorship upon his country, the American states ought soon to be ready to take measures in the common defense.

Evidently Castro feels that he is so entrenched that he could choose the eve of the meeting of the Organization of American States to lay down his ultimatum by declaring in fact: "I am a Communist. I have been a Communist since the beginning of the revolution, but I had to fool the people for a while. Soon Cuba will be a full-scale Communist state. What are you going to do about it?"

THIS IS A moment of truth for those American republics which wanted to avoid facing the Castro-Communist menace by pretending that Castro was just another "reformer—who wanted to bring democracy to his people." It is a complete confirmation of what the government of the United States has been saying about the Castro regime for the past two years.

It is all to the good that Castro has dropped the veil from his real purposes. This clarifies the issue. It brings more into the open the danger of the spread of communism in the western hemisphere. It makes it imperative that those members of the OAS prepare to defend themselves, and to rely on something more than words.

THE FIRST STEP will be an early meeting of the foreign ministers of the 21 American states.

They will have before them the accusation of Peru that Cuba's diplomats and foreign missions are carrying out Communist infiltration throughout the hemisphere "with the object of instigating subversion and revolution" and that Cuba has become a tool of the Soviet bloc.

They will have before them the contention of Colombia that these actions are a violation of Article 6 of the Inter-American Treaty of 1947.

Diplomatic and economic sanctions are the obvious first steps. Since the Cuban embassies have become a network of Communist subversion, the immediate thing to do is for the whole hemisphere to break diplomatic relations and thus confine Cuba's diplomats to Cuba. And, since Castro wants to fasten a Communist dictatorship upon Cuba, there is no reason why the other American states should help him.

Some of the American states will find it more expedient to run away from the facts than to face them. This means that there will be little chance of unanimous action by the OAS.

DOES THIS MEAN that the hemisphere nations which are alert to the Castro menace will have to stand idly by because others are too timid?

Nothing in the charter of the U.N. or the constitution of the OAS takes from any country the right of "individual and collective self-defense." Surely the time is now at hand when the majority of the OAS cannot allow itself to be immobilized by those who prefer to close their eyes rather than close their ranks. Those who are prepared to act together can do so—and should.

You will recall how often Castro publicly denied that he was a Communist and how many times he pledged that, when he came to power, there would be free elections and representative government in Cuba.

Castro does not dare let the Cuban people choose any more than Khrushchev dare let the Hungarian people choose.

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Cats, Dogs And Ducks Seem To Be Traveling More These Days

Cats, dogs and ducks seem to be traveling more and more.

Take Sicily Hatchet, a cat we know. Sicily took a trip to Colorado by auto with the Ed Miller family of Mill Valley. Disappearing after dinner near Craig, Colo., Sicily, Siamese and cranky, was given up for lost.

Then, one night in Mill Valley, Miller got a telephone call from a woman in Maybelle, Colo. It seems that Sicily had walked 30 miles from Craig into the Maybelle Post Office and given herself up.

A traveling cat, she had a cat tag on her neck giving her name, address and telephone. She boarded the Railway Express and in 11 days Sicily Hatchet arrived home in good shape—hungry and cranky.

IN SAUSALITO, Fireman John Terris says that Peaches, the fire station's mascot, travels all over town.

Bill Rutherford of Mill Valley said he used to have a dog which had been a ship's mascot. It had belonged to an admiral who took the dog all around the world. In 1907 the Navy gave Rutherford the dog and the dog's duffel bag containing a dog hammock, dog toys and back scratcher.

Rutherford has had 13 dogs in his life. All loved to travel and one used to stay in a hotel with him, a Boston bull.

Sometimes sad things happen to dogs who travel. Mr. and Mrs. William Lynch of Sausalito lost their poodle, Moppet, in an accident in Corte Madera. Neighbors Frank and Marian Kelly, who also have poodles, are going to try to mend things of the heart by giving the Lynches Mam'selle, a three-month-old poodle and grand niece of Moppet.

IT MAY BE that dogs and cats will take over the earth. With this in mind, there is no reason why they should not be travel-oriented and know where the blue evacuation markers are posted.

We know a dog who goes to Jacques, a small cafe, and greets people at the door. Old Square Jaw as we call him affectionately, has a nice home, lives with a horse in a stable, but he likes to take the air around town and ride in cars. He is a type of Cocker and Water Spaniel named Frank Parker, who has many friends and plans, they say, to send a few Christmas cards this year.

The other day a beautiful Afghan hound walked into our office. Name: Shera. Age: 18 months. Master's name: Tom Ray of Larkspur. Age: young.

Challenged by the fact Shera is said to be a specimen of one of the oldest known breeds of dogs, we asked for an interview on the spot.

She is affectionate, but not demanding. Very fast, Shera can run 40-50 miles an hour or, "as fast as a whippet," says Ray.

Marin County born, Shera is a show dog. There is evidence 2,000 to 3,000 years ago in Egyptian scrolls of this dog. Her breed is used for hunting, but Ray doesn't hunt. Shera, instead, plays with dog friends in her back yard and is said to run their legs off.

Afghans come in brindle, dark brown and red. Shera is red. Shera is blase, has bushy paws and wears her hair parted in the middle. This is natural. "Disposition is just like people; depends on way she is raised," Ray declared.

MANNY GOMEZ has two traveling ducks. They are Gook and Sister Duck.

"We always take them on our vacation with us," says Gomez. "Where would they go otherwise?" He said they never go more than 150 miles away.

"They are Muscovy's," he said. "Russian?" we asked. Gomez said he did not know but "they have red necks."

MERIAM NAGEL, browsing through a 1959 Naval Institute proceedings magazine, found this:

When, during World War II, Marin wanted to name a ship to be launched at Marinship "Marin," the Navy said no. The oiler would have to be named after a Marin river and there was none.

Three weeks later a document from the Marin County Supervisors was sent saying that "a certain body of water (sometimes it does have running water—in a wet winter) emptying into Richardson Bay . . . would henceforth be known as Marin River."

And the ship was named Marin.

JERRY GOOCH and Milt Azevedo have returned from an elk hunting trip in Canada's Bull River Country.

Azevedo got a bull. Gooch got a cow and found "a big grizzly track in the snow."

They both got temperatures at eight degrees.

HIEROGLYPH?

"A hieroglyph is a character in the picture writing of ancient Egyptians and other ancient peoples.

The study of hieroglyphics is one part of the study of archaeology, a science that not only helps us to understand the development of past civilizations but, in so doing, helps us to a better understanding of modern civilization. Unfortunately many potential archaeologists may never study this important science because they may never go to college. Already some of our colleges are overcrowded and in 10 years applications will double. We will need more and better college laboratories and thousands more of the highest quality professors.

49ers Keep Bowl Hopes Alive In Cliff-Hanger Win

By JACK HANLEY
I-J Correspondent

Red Hickey, still beaming over his 49ers' first win in three years over the Packers, declared today "whatever the outcome of the finale next Saturday in Kezar with the Colts I don't believe we've made it a dull season."

The redhead knew with absolute certainty that was a safe statement which would receive the endorsement of 55,722 Kezar fans who were delighted with the way Packer pride was punctured, 22-21, by a three-pointer Tommy Davis booted in the final 11 seconds.

Someone reminded Hickey that next Saturday's session might not be the finale for his heroes provided they win it and the Eagles knock off the Lions next Sunday. He knew, of course, as do all 49er fans, that combination would put the 49ers in a second place NFL Western Division tie with the Lions and send them to the Playoff Bowl instead of Detroit because of the early season 49-0 Shotgun win over the Lions.

The Shotgun was used once with disastrous results against the Packers as Bill Kilmer fumbled away a scoring opportunity on Green Bay's one yard line. But there was nothing frustrating about a new Zephyr formation that John Brodie mixed with the T.

"Actually it's not new," said Hickey. "The Giants and Lions have been using it right along this season. First time I saw it was when Detroit used it against us. I think the Lions call it the Zephyr. We call it 'triple left or triple right' to flood one side or the other with three receivers."

Brodie breezed to a new 49er passing record with the Zephyr, completing 19 out of 29 for 328 yards, an average of 11.3 yards. Honest John set the former mark of 9.9 yards per pass only last month against the Bears.

Once again that fabulous leaper, R. C. Owens, who becomes a free agent next week, was Brodie's favorite target. Owens leaped for seven and 127 yards, one of them a 10-yard TD strike after Jim Johnson put the ball in scoring position with a nifty interception and 63-yard runback.

Bernie Casey was as spectacular as Owens, catching five of Brodie's down field shots for 118 yards, including a sparkling 51-yard touchdown toss.

Casey moved into the lineup when J. D. Smith limped out early in the first quarter on a severe charley horse after unsuccessfully trying a fourth-and-two-to-go situation on the Packer eight yard line.

The 49ers may have punctured the championship pride of the Packers but not their defensive line that grudgingly gave up only 68 yards on 27 rushing efforts. However, Brodie took particular delight in fooling the Green Bay giants by turning end for three yards and a first down from a fake field goal attempt in midfield.

This bit of trickery led to Davis' first field goal from the 10 in the final quarter and, coupled with a safety Charlie Krueger and Dan Colchico tagged on Bart Starr at the outset of the second half, made the count 19-14.

Then the champs showed their class, traveling 73 yards in 10 plays, Jim Taylor plowing the last four yards to boost his game total to 122 in 22 carries. Now Paul Hornung kicked the extra point, just as he had earlier following touchdown passes of 22 and 14 yards to Max McGee, and Green Bay was out in front 21-19 for the first time with precisely two minutes left in the game.

The crowd, hoping for a cliff-hanging finish, wasn't disappointed as Abe Wodson took the final kickoff 46 yards up the middle to Green Bay's 45. A couple of classy catches by Casey and Owens moved the ball to the 13.

As the clock ticked toward the final gun, Brodie calmly called three running plays with the crowd imploring him to call time out which he did rather nonchalantly when only 14 seconds were left.

Then, Davis came in for the winning field goal, a 14-yard boot that needed only three seconds to execute.

"I could appreciate the crowd's anxiety about the time," said Brodie, "but we didn't want to leave those Packers with any time for anything spectacular."

The BULLPEN

With JOHN J. CONNOLLY

Last Second Snatch At Victory Is Hard On The Nerves Of 56,000 Fans

CONNOLLY

Woe to the coach who is unfortunate enough to have a contract coming up when red ink is on the books. Luckily neither Vince Lombardi of the Green Bay Packers nor Red Hickey of the 49ers are in that category, so what happened at Kezar in the harem scarem battle yesterday should have no effect on their pay checks next year.

This business of waiting until the last few fleeting seconds of a ball game to snatch victory, as the 49ers did yesterday, is too tough on the system. In the first place we'd suggest that the pro football coaches take some of the strain off our nerves by utilizing those scoring pass plays before the last few seconds of a wobbling exhibition.

I keep asking myself if a guy can complete passes when everybody in the stadium knows such a play is the only thing to expect and defend against. Why—tell me why—it wouldn't work earlier in the frolic when the other guys aren't so apt to be looking for it.

THEY'VE BEEN saying now that the 49ers have been beaten so often they've lost many things—offensive charge, alertness, toughness, keenness, vitality and punch. That may be so but it wasn't yesterday when the Green Bay Packers bowed 22 to 21 in a ball game that no movie script could ever hope to equal. It may be true that the players with the 49ers failed to hear or forget to believe in Hickey's Shotgun offensive.

Even though it steamed up the gate, the Shotgun, in its palmiest hours, couldn't carry a drink to the exhibition of showmanship put on by the valiant 49ers in a hair raising and eyebrow lifting battle before almost 56,000.

John Brodie, passing to a new record for yards gained in a single football game, showed himself to be a savvy guy. No telling how far he might go if able to use his own individuality.

BRODIE EXPLODED an ally-oop pass on the first play of the game and kept on the target throughout the game. He threw and completed more passes in a freezing field than he has ever before in his career.

In exhibiting his wares yesterday Brodie also showed he likes a guy like R. C. Owens around and he threw enough passes at R.C. to make the Morabito clan do some deep thinking before they allow him to slip away.

Owens became almost a certainty for 1962 by his play yesterday and if Coach Red Hickey doesn't convince the owners of his worth, then I'm going to be terribly disappointed in the stubborn redhead.

When you analyze the play of the 49ers yesterday and compare it with the whipping they've taken from this some Green Bay team, the Chicago Bears, Los Angeles Rams and Baltimore Colts and then count on customers yesterday, you begin to wonder why? Could it be that the public likes football as the pros dish it out?

EVIDENTLY THE S.F. football public likes blood curdling windups and desperation passes or why should a community go so daffy and in such large numbers as were exhausted yesterday watching the exciting exhibition.

It's easy to pick out flaws in the play of both teams, all leading up to important scores. There were all sorts of mental errors, fumbling, missed blocks and so. But it was about even on both teams. We all know that "next year" gag but if this season's attendance figures is any criterion of what to expect in 1962 when Coach Hickey promises to seal up the weak gaps on his club, then all I can say is let's whoop it up, and say "whee for '62."

NEW YORK WINS CRUCIAL GAME

Tittle Sputters, Cornerly Rallies Giants To Victory

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At 40, he's the oldest active player in the National Football League. He's heard the cheers and the jeers of crowds for 14 seasons and in all justice he's earned the right to go back to his farm in Mississippi and raise cotton in peace.

But gray-haired Charlie Conerly of the New York Giants yields to no player in pro football in the matter of pride, courage and the art of picking apart an opposing defense.

He proved all of that yesterday when he came off the bench during the second period and led the Giants to a 28-24 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles which clinched at least a tie for the NFL's Eastern Division title.

Conerly, who had not had the full responsibility for directing the Giants' attack since their Oct. 22 victory over the Los Angeles Rams, threw three touchdown passes and did a masterful job before a crowd of 60,671 at Philadelphia.

"It's a helluva tribute to him, how he can keep sharp both mentally and physically when he isn't playing too much," said coach Al Sherman.

Commented Conerly, a man of few words: "I was a little rusty and a little scared, too."

But because "good old Charlie" has that faculty for coming up with his greatest performance under pressure, the Giants now need only to beat or tie the Cleveland Browns next Sunday (or for the Eagles to lose to the Detroit Lions) in order to qualify for the NFL championship playoff opposite the Green Bay Packers.

The Chicago Bears knocked the Browns out of the Eastern race with a rallying 17-14 upset victory; the San Francisco 49ers upended the Packers, 22-21; the Detroit Lions defeated the winless Washington Redskins, 30-14, and the St. Louis Cardinals trounced the Dallas Cowboys, 31-13. (The Los Angeles Rams beat the Baltimore Colts, 34-17, Saturday.)

Conerly entered the game with the Eagles leading, 10-7, and the Giants' attack sputtering along under the usually effective Y. A. Tittle.

TD PASSES

"Old pro" Charlie first passed 35 yards to Joe Walton for a touchdown that gave New York a 14-10 hafltime lead. On the third play of the second half he hit Del Shofner with a 26-yard scoring pass. And he passed to Shofner for the 16-yard clinching touchdown with three minutes left to play.

Coach Nick Skorich complained about three penalties which hurt his Eagles. Just before Conerly passed to Walton for a touchdown, the Eagles intercepted one of his passes but the play was nullified by a penalty.

On another occasion, Sonny Jurgensen threw a "touchdown" pass to Tim Brown but the play was called back and Tommy McDonald was charged with offensive interference.

And late in the game, when it seemed the Giants would have to surrender the ball on a punt, they were permitted to retain possession and Philadelphia was penalized 15 yards for roughing punter Don Chandler.

EAGLES RALLY

Jurgensen, who threw TD passes of 30 yards to McDonald and 61 yards to Pete Retzlaff in a second-half rally which kept the score close, gained a total of 367 yards with his tosses and broke Johnny Unitas' single-season record by amassing 3,320 aerial yards.

At Chicago, the Bears scored 17 points in the final quarter to beat the Browns before a crowd of 38,717. Ed Brown's 64-yard touchdown passes to Angelo Coia tied the score and Roger LeClerc's nine-yard field goal won the game with less than two minutes remaining.

When the Browns scored their two touchdowns in the first period, Lou Groza kicked a pair of conversions that gave him an NFL career scoring record of 826 points. Don Hutson of Green Bay set the old mark.

Jim Martin kicked field goals of 43 and 20 yards in each of the last two periods in the Lions' win over the Vikings before 42,655 fans at Detroit.

Bob Ferguson Of O.S. Is Back Of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Ferguson, Ohio State's linesmashing fullback who already has signed to play with the Pittsburgh Steelers next season, is college football's "back of the year" for 1961 in a nationwide poll by United Press International.

The 217-pound Buckey star captured the honor by a small but clear margin over Syracuse University halfback Ernie Davis in voting by 324 sports writers and broadcasters throughout the country.

Ferguson, who previously had proved the top vote-getter on the UPI all-America team when he was mentioned on 90.1 per cent of all ballots cast, was the "back of the year" selection on 94 ballots. Davis who broke Jimmy Brown's rusihng records at Syracuse, was second with 70, and speedy halfback James Saxton of Texas was third with 58.

The Steelers, who made Ferguson their No. 1 choice in the annual National Football League draft, announced his signing last Friday. To get him they had to outbid the San Diego Chargers, who made him their No. 1 choice in the American Football League draft.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Green Bay Packers of the National Football League have signed their No. 2 collegiate draft choice.

The player is tackle Ed Blaine from the University of Missouri. Blaine, 6-2 and 230 pounds, will be tried out as an offensive guard by the Packers, the club said.

Rams Sign Irish Quarterback

Schultz, 21, of Schofield, Wis., is the fourth Notre Dame player to sign a pro contract in the last week, all with NFL teams.

Marin Tars Blow Tourney Championship Game, 79-57

Instead of a golden trophy, the College of Marin Tars came home with a bloody nose from the Vallejo Christmas basketball tournament.

The Tars were clobbered in the championship game by Vallejo Saturday night, 79 to 57. The East Bay squad led all the way and held the Tars' key offensive man, Lynn Livie, to a below-average 14 points. They didn't fool however with Tar freshman Randy Petrini, who coach Cal Riemcke described as the game's best player. Petrini tallied 20 points.

Vallejo out-shot and out-defended Marin. The Tars made only 27 per cent of their attempts at the bucket, their opponents basketed 47 per cent.

Riemcke said his team seemed flat all evening. "We lost because we did not play well."

"We would have to be playing our best for the entire game to beat Vallejo again. We let them work play after play on us that we have come against before." As an example Riemcke described a "weak-side screen" play for the guard that Vallejo used "any time they needed a bucket."

The Tars will have a chance to rebound when they play Contra Costa College tomorrow in San Pablo at 8 p.m.

Riemcke says he just about has his first crew tabbed and now will concentrate on keeping them together in intensive practice scrimmages.

"We'll know what we have in about two weeks," said the Marin mentor.

West's Secession Is Checked

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Secession of several western states from the National Boxing Association has been averted—at least temporarily.

Commissioners from Utah, Nevada, Oregon, Idaho, Arizona and Washington voted yesterday to stay in the organization, at least as long s Dr. James Larson of Tacoma, Wash., is president.

Larson told the group he will seek reforms in the NBA. He asked for time to get his recommendations into operation.

Complaints had been voiced over alleged Eastern domination of NBA offices, weak and ineffective officials and inefficient committee activities.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Pittsburg State of Kansas defeated Linfield of Oregon 12-6 in the first Camellia Bowl before only 10,000 spectators. But officials have promised to repeat the small college football championship in Sacramento despite the poor attendance.

Both teams were unbeaten in 10-game regular season schedules, with Pittsburg going on ti live up to its Associated Press rating as the No. 1 small college team in the nation.

The game, formerly called the Holiday Bowl when staged six times in St. Petersburg, Fla., annually decides National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championships.

Drake Wins Marin League's Christmas Cage Tourney

Pirates Beat Wildcats In Final; Tamites Third

By PAUL MILLER

The Sir Francis Drake Pirates not only hosted the Marin County Athletic League's 1961 Christmas basketball tournament—but they also won it.

Coach Carl Brown's swashbuckling Pirates put away the defending tournament champions, Marin Catholic High, 49 to 44 Saturday to gain this year's honor. The Pirates squirmed by Redwood High in the tournament's first game, 42-40 and walked over Novato in the semi-finals.

In the earlier game Saturday, coach Eddie Chavez' Tamalpais Indians gunned down the Novato Hornets, 43-20 for third spot. The remainder of the standings was decided when Redwood beat San Rafael in the consolation game Friday.

The tournament trophy and awards to the five-man all-tournament team were presented, following the championship game, by Tamalpais High School District Supt. Chester Carlisle. Named to that team were Dave Manuel, guard, and John McBride, forward, both of Drake; Jerry Smith, Marin Catholic guard; Pete Bardea, Tam center, and Jay Johnson, Redwood guard. Johnson was also lauded for setting a new individual scoring record of 34 points in a single game. The count also betters any scored during MCAL league games.

BIG GAME

In the championship tilt before a full house of screaming rooters, the San Anselmo squad—minus sharp shooting forward Brad Busch who was ill with 103 degree temperature—worked like a mortar gun crew to keep a good arm's length in front of the Wildcats until the last two minutes of the contest.

In the first period Drake tallied 14 points to the Wildcats' 9 and at halftime the count favored the Pirates 26-19. But in the third and final periods coach Bernie Schneider's Catholics began to creep up on the Hub people. The Wildcats scored 14 points to the Pirates' 8 in the third quarter. And came within two points of the leaders in the final two minutes of the game.

In that last period with about two minutes to go Wildcat Jerry Smith dropped in one of his three field goals of the evening to make the count 44-37 with the Pirates still leading, Catholic forward John Enos hit once in a one-and-one charity situation and it was 44-40, Drake. With a minute to go Drake reserve forward Curt Jensen scored a field goal, but then Smith retaliated with a bucket and Ron O'Connell of Marin did the same and with the count 46-44, the Pirates began to worry. But Pirate John Giesea scored a field goal with 28 seconds to go then dropped a charity and the Pirates followed with another and it was all over. The Pirates said afterwards they won the game for their ill colleague Busch.

For Drake, McBride led the scoring with 15 and Mark Boero, a hustling contender, was next with 11. Smith and O'Connell were Marin's top shooters with 11 each.

TAM-NOVATO

The Tamalpais Indians had an easy time of it to gain third place in the tournament against the Hornets. After scoring 16 points against the North Marinites in the second quarter it was picnic time for Tam until the final gun. The game was so lop-sided that Indian players began to clown for lack of excitement. The entertainment was led by Art Foster, Tam forward, who while performing tabbed eight counts for his team. Even stalwart linebacker Paul Farren was laughing in the game's final quarter.

Tam coach Eddie Chavez, one of the calmest coaches in the county was more than calm during Saturday's game. Coach O. T. McKatee's Hornets did not throw up the sponge, but neither did they throw up the ball where it belonged. They scored a meager four points in the first and third quarter and six points in the second and final periods. What they need is four more Joe Colfers.

Tam guard Warren Domino was a hustling man as he has continued to be as floor leader of the Indians. His average four plus points a game does not attest to his value on the hardwood for the Mill Valley school. All-Tournament selection Pete Bardea vied with Hornet Harry Cassidy on the backboards and with Colfer who much of the time has to go in and chase his own rebounds. Bardea was a low scorer Saturday because Chavez didn't need him and didn't use him. High scorer for the Indians was Brian Beard with 10. He was in front of center Rich Abbott, who tallied nine.

The Chavez crew got a slow six points in the first period then had that blitz second quarter, followed by 11 points gained in the third and 10 in the fourth. The South Marinites may be commended for their teamwork.

Fullmer 'Man Of Year' As Busiest Champion

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Gene Fullmer has got to be the working man's candidate for "Man of the Year." As a boxer, a world champion, he is a magnificent day laborer.

There is nothing spectacular about Fullmer. He just uses his hands, and maybe a little elbow grease and a shoulder here and there, to lift that bale, tote that load and knock the hell out of the other guy in the ring.

It's just like any other working stiff. It brings home the bacon. It also keeps Gene in his proudest possession, the National Boxing Association portion of the world middleweight championship.

Saturday night Fullmer in the same dig-that-ditch fashion knocked out Benny "Kid" Paret in 10 rounds to keep his cherished title, and wreck Benny's dream of becoming a double division champion.

Paret owns the world welterweight, or 147-pound championship. For Saturday night's effort the Cuban kid weighed 156¾ and Gene 159¾.

There was really nothing singular about Fullmer's victory. He just pinned Paret against the ropes for most of the bout and belabored him with a constant barrage of short lefts and rights.

Finally, after 2:30 of the 10th round, in both exasperation and utter exhaustion, Paret simply pitched over backwards for the third time in the round and received a 10-count from referee Harry Krause.

There was blood shedding, of course; Fullmer mostly, as usual, from eye, nose, forehead and mouth. His white trunks were spattered with red.

Paret was just out, dead. In his dressing room he had to be helped in getting his necktie under his collar to knot it.

For the 6,100 fans in the plush Convention Center, and the viewing TV fans across the nation, it apparently was a fine fight. Some of them booed the plodding, craggy-browed winner. But mostly there were cheers.

"I'd just as soon they'd go down in the first if they're gonna go down," said an armweary Fullmer.

Paret's manager, Manuel Alfaro, bemoaned what he called Fullmer's rough-house tactics. But he said Paret would try no more middleweights for a while.

Fullmer reiterated he wants to meet Terry Downes of England, co-holder of the world title, to clear up the disputed championship.

Paul Pender of Boston is set next March to face the Englishman—the fight Fullmer wants. Gene, to show he's serious about getting a shot at Downes, is offering Pender $15,000 to step aside and give him first crack.

FULLBACK INKS 49ER CONTRACT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco 49ers have announced signing fullback Keith Luhnow, a 220-pounder from Santa Ana Junior College.

Luhnow was a sixth draft choice of the 49ers. From San Diego, he is married and has two children.

Raiders Face Tough Task Next Weeekend

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — All the Oakland Raiders have to do to tie Denver for third place in the American Football League's Western Division is beat the Houston Ailers, the highest scoring team in the league.

The Boston Patriots beat the Raiders 35-21 at Candlestick Park Saturday, the Raiders' fifth straight defeat.

Oakland (2-11) has tallied just 221 points, least in the AFL, and the Raiders will be facing a Houston team Sunday that needs a victory to wrap up the Eastern Division crown.

It'll be the Raiders' last scheduled appearance in San Francisco. They plan to play next year in Oakland for the first time since joining the AFL last season.

Two former Raiders, quarterback Babe Parilli and fullback Billy Lott, led the Patriots' scoring parade against Oakland. Lott ran for two touchdowns and caught one of Parilli's three scoring passes.

The Raiders were in the game until the final three minutes. Trailing 28-21, they fumbled on their own 19. The Patriots pounced on the football and three plays later Parilli hit Larry Garren with the eight-yard touchdown pass that wrapped up the game.

Tom Flores, a young man with a lot on his mind, completed 16 of 27 passes for the Raiders, good for 211 yards and two touchdowns. His wife, expecting their first child, was taken to a hospital Friday night with hepatitis.

The Raiders were unable to move against the Patriot line, getting only two first downs on the ground to 17 for Boston. Parilli passed for 11 more first downs. Flores hit for nine.

Lott, who caught five passes for 62 yards, ran for 86 in 20 carries.

Aggies Harper Honored At Bowl

PASADENA (AP)—Bill Harper, slippery quarterback for the Cameron, Okla., Aggies, has been named Junior Rose Bowl player of the year for his part in the Aggies' 28-20 upset victory over Bakersfield.

Harper ran for the Aggies' first score, passed for their second and called a surprise pitchout that produced the deciding touchdown Saturday.

Harper, of Detroit, is the first Negro quarterback in Cameron history.

And The Bowl Games Keep Coming On And On And . . .

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chapter One of this year's bowl saga is over and Chapter Two of the ever-lengthening series is coming up this weekend in Philadelphia and Houston.

In Philadelphia's Liberty Bowl, Syracuse, led by All-America halfback Ernie Davis, tackles a hot Miami (Fla.) University team. The third Bluebonnet Bowl game will be placed in Houston's Rice Stadium, pitting Kansas against Rice.

Both games will be nationally televised.

There are still plenty more to come, continuing Dec. 24 with the North-South game in Miami. The following seven days will be crammed with Bowls and all star games.

The debut of the Gotham Bowl this past weekend was a 24-9 success for Baylor's Bears over previously unbeaten, but once-tied Utah State. The promotors say they'll be back for more in 1962.

Syracuse, with Heisman Trophy winner Davis the big selling point, brings a 7-3 record to the Liberty Bowl against the Hurricanes. The Florida team won its last five games, and also finished with a 7-3 mark.

Camp Fire Girls Brighten Christmas With Stockings

The Camp Fire Girls of Marin County have again decorated and filled Christmas stockings with small useful articles and some "just for fun" items to be distributed by the American Friends Service Committee to areas most in need of them. This has been a Camp Fire Girls project for the past seven years.

Most of the stockings have gone to foreign countries, but a letter was received from Davis B. Brown, American Friends Field Worker in Round Valley, Calif., indicating that some of the stockings last year had found their way to that little town near Willets. The Ko Kon Kin Ki Camp Fire Girls of San Anselmo, one of the many groups participating in this project, learned that shoes were greatly needed in this area and collected 25 pair to send along with their Christmas stockings.

This year the stockings will be sent to Round Valley, to the American Indian children who attend the Intertribal Friendship House Christmas party in Oakland, and to the Algerian Refugee children.

Promote A Healthy Social Life For You Teen-Agers

Will your teen-agers be going to dances and parties during the holidays? Many kids will. Do you want to be social successes? Here are some suggestions.

Don't let your young people go to wild parties. But do let them go to good parties. Don't let them date bad youngsters.

But encourage them to go out with good ones. Their social life is very important. If your daughter can be popular with nice boys, she'll learn to judge males. Then when the time comes she can do a good job of picking a husband. Your son needs to be popular with girls for the same reason.

Do your teen-agers know how to dance? If not, arrange to have someone teach them. Does your boy know how to ask a girl for a date? What clothes are appropriate? Why neatness is necessary? If he doesn't, teach him.

Does your girl have a nice party dress? It doesn't need to be expensive, but it should be in good taste. Does she know how to put a boy at ease when talking with him? Can she discuss sports and other subjects boys care about? Does she know she should not drink? Help her all you can.

There are elements of risk in parties, of course. There are risks in everything teen-agers do. You should know what party they're attending, and who is giving it. You should keep them away from brawls. Be sure their affairs are well chaperoned. Set a deadline for coming home. But within reasonable limits let them have fun. It's part of growing up. You'll enjoy helping.

Children To Serenade At Greenbrae School

There'll be "Music in the Air" tomorrow afternoon as children of Greenbrae School present vocal and instrumental Christmas music from many countries.

The program will begin at 1:30 p.m. at the school, but from 1:10 on, fifth and sixth graders will serenade parents and friends of the school as they arrive. Outside the hall, fourth graders will play selections on their tonettes.

Instrumental music students under the direction of Thompson Chesnut will begin the program. Vocal selections will follow by each grade, one through four. Mrs. Francis Brodie is in charge of vocal music instruction at the school.

Not until Mrs. Hubert Pessner, Greenbrae P-TA president, conducts the 10-minute business session at 2:20 p.m., concluding the program, will a spoken word be heard. A printed program will replace announcements.

The program will introduce to P-TA audiences for the first time the $600 stage curtains which were bought and installed at P-TA expense.

It will also show off the eight-foot Monterey pine the P-TA bought and pupils decorated. The P-TA also donated a live yellow willow tree to the school for planting in the area of the kindergarten steps.

Remember Weight

The newest scale memorizes weight. The dial locks when the needle hits the number registering your weight. It stays locked until the dial is released with a toe-tip of the lock button. The manufacturer had the stout, the near-sighted and expectant mothers in mind when designing the scale. These people have difficulty in bending over to read the meter.

Trim, Maintain Christmas Tree The Safest Way

CHICAGO (UPI)—Take extra precautions against fire during the Christmas season. Fire prevention experts offer these do's and dont's.

Don't set trees close to stairways where they could block escape from upstairs in case of fire.

Select a tree that is freshly-cut by feeling the needles to see that they are attached firmly. Keep the tree outdoors until just before Christmas, and in a pail of water so it remains fresh.

Set up the tree in the coolest part of the room, as far as possible from radiators, heaters and fireplace, to prevent overdrying.

Fill the water container daily in the tree stand.

Use only glass, metal or fire-resistant tree trimmings.

Keep electric trains away from the tree. A spark could ignite dry pine needles.

Check lights before putting on the tree and discard any with frayed wires.

When you open presents, get rid of wrappings immediately.

When the tree begins shedding needles discard it outdoors.

Even if tree is still fresh, plan to dismantle the day after New Year's.

Use only off-the-tree lighting on metal trees, to guard against the danger of shock if cord becomes frayed.

Turn off tree lights when leaving the house.

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Honoring Dr. and Mrs. Harry Blackfield of Kent Woodlands a dinner party was given last night by Mr. and Mrs. William Dixon and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gaviati at the Gaviati home in Kent Woodlands. Other guests were Messrs and Mesdames Rinaldo Belli, Jack Cooper, Harold Shapiro, Simon Anixter and Robert Rogers.

The Blackfields have a house at the northern end of Palm Springs and will spend the holidays there. Last night's party was a "going away" affair.

Mrs. Blackfield will leave for Palm Springs Thursday. Doctor Blackfield will join her later. With them for the holidays will be their daughter, Wendy Blackfield, who attends Verde Valley School in Sedona, Ariz., another daughter, Mrs. Judy Zeltman of San Francisco, and two other daughters and their husbands, the Bill Shaffers (Penny Blackfield) of San Diego and the Roy Lonbergers (Bonnie Blackfield) of Los Angeles.

FROM VIENNA, Austria comes the news of the engagement of Countess Bettina Strachwitz and Patrick Eugene Praetzel, widely known Marin County singer, who has been studying in Vienna for two years. A tenor, he has been appearing professionally since he was a small boy and has sung in many light operas. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Praetzel of San Quentin, have been traveling in Europe since last September. They are expected home in April. The engagement was announced by the bride-elect's parents, Count Farald Strachwitz and Countess Leopoldine Strachwitz, who have a castle in Vienna. Pat is the brother of Robert Praetzel of San Anselmo, an attorney, Conrad Pratezel Jr. of Redwood City and Mrs. John Saylor of San Francisco.

FROM PARIS, France, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Saul of Greenbrae received the news that their son, Peter, an artist, who has a studio in the French capital, received the $2,000 Copley art award. His paintings were shown during the month of November at the Allen Frunkin Gallery in Chicago and will be seen again in the Frunkin Gallery in New York City early next year. His wife, the former Vicki Goorman of St. Louis, Mo., and he are expecting their first child in January. Peter and Vicki first met when attending art school at Washington University in St. Louis.

IN MILL VALLEY, Mr. and Mrs. Carles Hegg entertained about 40 friends at a cocktail party at their home Saturday night. The party was both a house warming and a holiday celebration.

ON A SKIING TRIP in Canada are the Jack Himmelwrights of Belvedere.

AMONG THOSE attending the Delta Gamma Christmas dinner dance at the Tiburon Peninsula Club Saturday night were Messrs. and Mesdames Russell Baker, William Brooke, Richard Clarke, James W. Fahrner, Allen Feder, Robert Langhead, Harold Means, William Pardue, Peter A. Ribar, H. Nordmark Williams and Miss Melanie Brown.

A Statistic Can Tell About How He Got That Way

(NOTE: Today's guest editorial was submitted to the Independent-Journal by a member of the State Highway Patrol, a man who should know what he is talking about.)

I am a statistic, a traffic statistic. I was once alive like you, full of life and anticipation of a full life ahead. Oh, I was just average, I suppose, had an average job, made average wages, and did average things. I was married, had two fine children in school and enjoyed living and working for my wife and family.

The evening I met my end, I had been to a little card party with some of the boys. Sure, we had a few drinks, a little snack before leaving for home and a short one for the road.

Normally, I was what I considered a good driver. I seldom broke any important traffic laws — sure, I would slip through a traffic light change on occasion, drive 8 to 15 miles over the posted speed limit when traffic was light and oft-times drove home after having a few drinks at a party or at a friend's house on the way home.

That fatal evening I felt fine, the few drinks gave me a lift and I took no more than the usual chances everyone takes in traffic. Suddenly, I thought I saw a parked car ahead on the freeway—actually, it was a slow moving truck. I came upon it as I rounded a curve posted for 50 miles an hour—I was going nearer 65—but then, I had made that curve at 65 many times before.

This time, I swerved to my left to avoid hitting the slower vehicle. But, I had failed to note another car was in the process of passing me and our cars tangled.

I lost control, hit the brake hard, tried to swing back again. The next thing I knew I was being loaded on a stretcher and I heard someone say, "If he hadn't been going so fast he might have made it."

I knew inside me that, I wouldn't have been going quite so fast if I hadn't been drinking a little too much. The effect of the alcohol in my blood deadened my sense of danger—I thought I was just as good with a few drinks as when fully sober. I wasn't.

I died a few hours after the accident. I was counted among the fatal statistics that day. You won't recognize me now as I am just one of many on the statistical rolls.

I would like to leave this with you:

Traffic officials aren't fooling when they warn you to obey traffic rules and to avoid driving when under the influence of even a small amount of alcohol. They know what they are talking about; they have the proof. I'm part of that proof.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

What Does 'Hate' Mean To Writer?

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Much as I dislike controversy, I find it impossible to sit silently on the sidelines while the motives of all those who oppose the admission of Red China into the U.N. are impugned.

"Why all this HATRED towards Red China?" asks William Booth with studied innocence. "Why do senators and congressmen lend their names to these HATE programs?"

I wonder if Mr. Booth would be so kind as to explain exactly what those two capitalized words mean to him, since he seems to understand them in quite a different sense than those given in the dictionary.

Would you say it was Hatred, Mr. Booth, which prompts men to make laws to protect public well-being? And would you really accuse a policeman or judge of engaging in a hate campaign when he upheld or enforced them?

Actually, you could scarcely have chosen a less apt set of words to describe the emotion that has moved your Red China opponents to take the position they have on this issue, because in very truth their view has been engendered by love—an efficacious love that, like that of a parent, looks out for the true well-being of the offender by using some form of punishment when it is needed.

And if you truly can't see that Red China has offended by its aggressions in Tibet and elsewhere, I'm afraid I'm wasting my words on you.

Get Red China Things Straight

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I would like to set William Booth straight on a few things.

In his letter of Dec. 5 he states that the film "Red China—Outlaw" had no documentation. That film was prepared by the Dept. of Defense and the Dept. of State and several other governmental agencies. Is it his contention that our government would deliberately attempt to mislead us?

The films of the Korean War atrocities were taken from the archives of the U.N. Is he attempting to suggest that the U.N. would attempt to mislead us? Furthermore, the film so stated.

He also states that since no one can travel behind the bamboo curtain we can't know what is going on in Red China. I would like to refer him to a certain document. This document is a 345 page report of a legal inquiry committee set up by the International Commission of Jurists, a politically free, non-government organization. The distinguished members of the committee included a judge of the Supreme Court of Ceylon, a former justice of the Supreme Court of Burma, an ex-prime minister of Thailand, the president of the Philippine Bar Association, and lawyers from India, Ghana and Norway.

The committee was set up to find out the real story of Tibet and in order to do this, the committee held hearings in India where more than 50,000 Tibetan refugees, including the Dalai Lama, had fled. They received statements from a large number of these refugees, then subjected many of them to searching direct examination. They also secured copies of what the official Red Chinese and Chinese-controlled Tibetan press and radio were saying during the dread decade.

The picture that emerged from this inquiry was almost too horrible to believe. I suggest that Mr. Booth read this report. I also refer him to the millions of refugees that pour into Hong-Kong.

Mr. Booth further suggests that if we admit Red China to the U.N. and extend diplomatic recognition we will be able to travel in Red China. We have extended recognition to U.S.S.R. (30 years ago) and we certainly can't travel freely behind the Iron Curtain.

If we admit Red China to the U.N. it will render that body ineffective since Red China will have a seat on the Security Council. Russia has already hamstrung the Security Council with 87 vetoes. We have never used the veto.

Red China is not eligible for membership in the U.N. since Art. IV states that membership is open to new states but they must be peace-loving. The U.N. was never intended to include membership of all nations regardless of their actions as a government. Admission of Red China would give permanent status to a political regime that represents less than two per cent of the Chinese population. The Red Chinese government is no more qualified to speak for the Chinese than is the cat that swallowed the canary.

Finally, admission (while it does not necessarily mean approval) would mean suspension of disapproval and therefore encourage future aggression.

Finally, Mr. Booth, are you aware that both houses of Congress have passed unanimous resolutions against the admission of Red China to the U.N.?

THREE MINUTES A DAY

TOO YOUNG TO DRIVE

Startled by a loud crash while he was visiting a self-service laundry, a man in Long Beach, Calif., ran outside to see what was the matter.

There was plenty the matter. His new car had plunged through the store's large plate glass window. No one was hurt but the car —to say nothing of the store—was badly damaged.

Sitting at the wheel was the man's 3-year-old son.

Although the age of 3 is a bit early for the younger generation to be in the driver's seat, it is true that the direction of the world will someday be in their hands.

How well they will do is largely the responsibility under God of those who direct their formation in the home, church and school.

Help prepare youth for a creative role in life by encouraging their initiative and gently curbing their excesses. Both they and you will be the richer for it.

"See that you despise not one of these little ones." (Matthew 18:10)

Let me pray and act, O Lord of all, with an eye to the future by helping youth physically and spiritually.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

"Hello! Is this Police Headquarters?" came an anguished voice over the telephone. "This is the Old Maids Home. Send a riot squad quick! A burglar has broken in!"

"Okay, okay," soothed the lieutenant at the desk. "Who's this speaking?"

"It's the burglar," answered the terrified voice.

A college graduate was having a tough time making the grade in a brokerage house. "Tell me," implored a partner in desperation, "why did your Uncle Herbert send you down here?" The graduate explained without rancor, "He says he wants to get square with Wall Street for what happened to him in 1929."

The new girl in the first grade was sneezing and sniffling all through the spelling lesson. The teacher finally asked her, "My dear child, haven't you got a handkerchief in your pocket?" "Yes, teacher," sniffled the new girl, "but mama told me never to lend it to anybody."

This week's prize "overheard" is submitted by Polly Kahn. A visitor from the South was showing his young son the sights of mid-Manhattan. The boy pointed to St. Patrick's Cathedral and asked, "What's that building, Pa?" The father unhesitatingly replied, "Son, that is New York City's Baptist church!"

David Douglas Started Controversy But The Tree's Tops For Christmas

With the Christmas season closer and closer, people are starting to decorate their houses with lights and putting up their Christmas trees.

Most of the trees sold for Christmas are Douglas fir, cut from the Cascades or Coast ranges of Oregon and Washington. Other trees also used are Alpine fir, white fir, Noble fir and occasionally a pine tree.

It is the Douglas fir that captures most of the honors for Christmas tree. This is an unusual tree in many respects. Where it grows, it is so prolific that it is a weed. It is the most important tree in the world for lumber. It has been exported to other countries which want a fast growing, hearty tree that is adaptable to many climates.

The tree was first identified and described by David Douglas during his botanical explorations with the Hudson's Bay Company at Vancouver, Wash. However, he started a storm of controversy that has not been settled since.

Douglas identified the tree as a fir. Other scientists have identified it as a hemlock. The scientific name for it has been changed no less than three times because botanists cannot agree to which family it belongs botanically.

Let them argue that point. This time of year it belongs to any American family that wants the fragrance of the forest in their homes during the holiday seasons.

A WORD of caution about Christmas trees. Any member of the evergreen family of trees has a great amount of pitch and resin in it. This is a fire hazard when the tree dries out.

For years, fire departments have waged a battle to get a flame proofing spray used on all trees. Many cities actually adopted ordinances requiring this before trees could be sold in the city.

However, someone whose knowledge of nature was greater than his knowledge of chemistry, discovered that water would do the trick equally as well. So recent trends have been to make some arrangement so the tree could sit in water. Taken up into the branches of the tree, this water proved to be an excellent preservative for the tree, as well as a good fire preventative.

AMONG THE Christmas shoppers we overheard one in a store asking the clerk for some "stimulated pearls."

We wonder if these pearls come from "stimulated oysters," and if so, what were they stimulated with—Christmas spirits no doubt.

WITH THE DUCK hunting season just ending, we heard of one person who opposed this sport. He was deploring hunters who take swigs out of bottles to keep warm, until they become saturated with good-natured anti-freeze.

"These duck hunters get good and soused and then take their rifles and go out into the woods and shoot at anything," he said.

We began to wonder just how many duck hunters he'd seen drunk at the crack of dawn with rifles in the woods . . . or what he had been drinking to see that.

AND ALONG a safety note also, we read in the paper where the state of South Carolina is buying a new electric chair.

It seems that the politicians thought the old one was not considered safe enough.

Common Market Is Something Mr. K Can Do Nothing About

WASHINGTON—The challenge which the burgeoning European Common Market presents to American industry should, I think, get the most cordial and constructive response from conservative opinion in the United States.

Western Europe is today putting into practice with galvanic success the three things which Americans feel have contributed most to the strength and prosperity of the United States:

1—ECONOMIC UNITY. This means a free-trading, continent-wide open market. The 13 original American states began by creating an American common market, which has grown to a 50-state American common market across whose borders goods, labor, and capital flow freely. This is exactly what the European Common Market is dramatically achieving.

2—POLITICAL FEDERATION. At first the 13 American states created a loose political integration and this steadily developed into federation and union.

This is what has been happening in Western Europe during the past five years. The six Common Market nations—soon to be joined by Britain and others — have been developing that degree of European political unity necessary to manage European economic unity.

European federation is evolving not to fit theory, but to meet the European needs. A substantially united Western Europe is in the making.

3—COMPETITIVE ENTERPRISE. Most Americans have always believed that a widely shared prosperity in the U. S. can best be achieved by the maximum of competitive enterprise and a minimum of government control.

Today the European Common Market is proving that it is good for Europe. Western Europe is today the most prospering area in the whole world and its rapid rate of growth rests upon the vigor of its competitive enterprise economy.

Competitive enterprise is doing such a magnificent job that doctrinaire socialism and the old demand to nationalize industry are vanishing from the political platforms of the major left-wing parties.

The European Common Market parallels the best traditions and the best practices of the United States. The European Common Market is here to stay—unless we make the mistake of adopting economic policies which will tend to wreck it and ourselves. We have, I believe, every reason to welcome the Common Market because it is a development capable of changing the whole face of the cold war.

THE COMMUNISTS have fought European unification at every point.

When the U. S. proposed the Organization for European Economic Cooperation to help administer the Marshall Plan on a Europe-wide basis, the Soviets walked out and forced Poland and Czechoslovakia to withdraw. At Moscow's bidding, the Communist parties of Western Europe and Britain have fought the Common Market.

Talk about taking the intiative in the cold war — the European Common Market represents the best initiative behind which the West can rally. Khrushchev fears the European Common Market and, most of all, an all-Atlantic economic community. There is nothing he can do about it.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 12, the 346th day of the year with 19 to follow in 1961.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1910, Edward D. White of Louisiana became chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1947, John L. Lewis withdrew his United Mine Workers Union from the American Federation of Labor for the second time.

In 1953, Maj. Charles (Chuck) Yeager flew a Bell X-1A jet research plane at more than two and one-half times the speed of sound at Edwards Air Force Base.

In 1959, the Paraguayan government announced that an invasion by 1,000 rebel exiles in Argentina had been crushed.

A thought for the day: American Congregational clergyman and theologian Jonathan Edwards said: "I assert that nothing ever comes to pass without a cause."

West opened the jack of clubs, and South won with the king. The contract was apparently ironclad, since South could lose only one trump and two spades at worst. But appearances were deceptive.

South led the queen of hearts for a finesse and winced when West discarded the nine of spades. Clearly the trump finesse was not going to work. East was sure to get a trick sooner or later with the king of hearts.

Should it be sooner — or later?

South decided to put off the day of reckoning. He won the second trick with dummy's ace of hearts. "Why take a losing finesse?" he thought to himself.

COSTLY DELAY: The delay was very costly. When declarer led a low trump from dummy at the next trick East stepped up with the king of hearts, cashed the ace of spades and let a spade to the king.

West led a third spade, and East could now over-ruff the dummy with the nine of hearts. Down one.

South can make the contract by gifting up the first trump trick. This leaves the ace of trumps in the dummy to take care of the third round of spades. Nobody can over-ruff the ace of trumps. Declarer would then be able to draw the rest of the trumps and claim the contract.

DAILY QUESTION: Partner opens with one spade, and the next player doubles. You hold:

What do you say?

Answer: Bid four spades. This jump expresses the playing strength of your hand and the failure to redouble indicates that you have limited strength in high cards.

Hallinan-Ehrlich Debate On Tap

A debate between attorneys J. W. Ehrlich and Vincent Hallinan on "can it be legally established that there is a Heaven, Hell or Purgatory?" will be shown on KPIX-TV channel 5 on Jan. 4 at 12:15 a.m., it was announced by the station today.

The showing of the taped debate had been scheduled for the same time Saturday.

Hallinan, of Ross, argues that there are no such places, thereby making a fraud of the church's receiving money from a deceased person "for the salvation of his soul."

Ehrlich, formerly of Corte Madera, argues that the nonexistence of the soul and the places it might go after death cannot be proven.

Plea of two Los Angeles men to charges of attempting to swindle retired Larkspur banker Redmond Everhard has been continued in Marin Superior Court until next Monday while arguments were pressed for a motion for dismissal.

The men are William A. Simon, 56, free on $5,250 bail, and Robert T. Brown, 25, held in Marin County Jail after a person guaranteeing his bail withdrew and a bondsman surrendered him to the sheriff.

Interests Rates Moving Higher Again In Nation

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates are moving higher again.

Part of this is due to official money management policies. Part is due to a change in the economic atmosphere — specifically, the growing feeling among businessmen and consumers that times are getting better, and maybe much better. And part is due to a fierce competition for funds within banking and other financial institutions.

Many expect the rise to be slow and modest. But some think a business boom could see a faster rise on short order.

The increase in interest rates will benefit some savers. It will prove costlier for some borrowers, but probably not enough to discourage many of them. It will both please and worry the Kennedy administration.

ing, usually not allergic, and are highly effective germicides.

That is because the money managers, on the one hand, want interest rates, especially on short-term securities, higher so that investors won't be taking their money out of the United States to get better return abroad. This could weaken the dollar and step up the outflow of gold again.

But if long-term interest rates also rise, as they seem likely to now, the administration might worry because it wants to encourage business to expand, new homes to rise, and consumers to buy big ticket items. This would stimulate economic growth, a prime administration aim.

So far, the administration has had good luck in both its aims. The Federal Reserve Board has cooperated by keeping short-term rates high. There is some talk in Wall Street now htat it may again raise its discount rate—what it charges for money it lends member banks. All of this helps keep short-term funds here, or at least hold down their flow abroad.

Long-term rates have risen a little in the mortage field, but mostly have held fairly steady. This is largely because the banks and other lending institutions had a good supply of money to lend, and the demand for long-term loans hasn't risen much.

Business has kept its expansion plans well under boom proportions, and it has been able to finance many of its activities out of its own funds—retained earnings, depreciation allowances and the like.

Now the trend on interest rates is toward the higher road. Commercial banks are being allowed to raise their interest payments on some savings accounts as high as 4 per cent. Savings and loan associations which have been paying as high as 4½ per cent on the West Coast are debating whether to raise their payments to investors, to lure in more funds, and if so, whether to raise charges on mortgage loans to pay for the increase.

Consumers are reported planning to spend more, and already have been buying more big ticket items on time. This can help dry up any excess funds lying around looking for borrowers.

But the big jump, if it comes, would be in business borrowing. This hasn't developed yet. Industrial capacity is still in excess of customer demand. The question is: How long will it be?

Some note that total business expansion plans are already rising, pointing to more borrowing in the next few months.

Others stress a growing confidence among businessmen of the type which in the past has often led to stepped-up expantion. If all this occurs, the demand for money might put a strain on the administration hopes for holding down long-term rates.

But at the moment one thing seems sure: Interest rates are rising a little here and there, with the end not yet in sight.

Burn Taken Out Of Plain Old Iodine

NEW YORK (UPI)—The nation's surgeons have been urged to brace themselves and to remain calm and skeptical in the face of a great "idophor" promotional storm which is about to break over them.

An "idophor," for your information, is merely plain old iodine and something else, the something else being any chemical compound that might make iodine more effective as a germicide but less burning.

It results from chemical experimenting any chemist can indulge in, but a number of medicinal houses have developed "idophors" which they believe will replace iodine. They are planning large scale promotions among surgeons.

These prime users of germicides were urged not to dream by Drs. Donald Blatt and James V. Maloney of the University of California, Los Angeles Campus, in the technical organ of the American College of Surgeons.

It is natural for surgeons to have a "subconscious desire" for some magic one thing which will more or less automatically eliminate the professional hazard of wound infection, these surgeons said.

This desire makes the surgeon "easy prey of commercial promotion which promises to eliminate this major problem of his surgical practice," they said. "During the past decade the surgeon has unjustifiably embraced a number of such panaceas only to be disillusioned.

"These efforts to control infection have been interesting and perhaps helpful; unfortunately, they have sometimes diverted the surgeon's attention from basic principles of surgery" which in themselves are quite capable of averting wound infection.

Blatt and Maloney had tested three "iodoforms" and water and alcohol solutions of iodine. All contained precisely the same amounts of iodine. All were tested against three types of microorganisms often involved in surgical infections.

The "iodoforms" were all iodine with one or another type of detergent added. The chemical idea of these combinations is to dissolve iodine into materials in which it is readily soluable (which it isn't in either water or alcohol) and to so "bind" it chemically that it will be released steadily from bondage to work against germs.

Theoretically this should make an "iodoform" less caustic to tender skin, less given to causing allergic reaction, less staining and as effective or perhaps more effective as a germicied than iodine.

Blatt and Maloney reported that their testing showed the three "iodoforms" were the equivalents of "weak solutions of iodine," and solutions which were weaker than those commonly sold in drug stores and commonly used by surgeons.

They said iodine solution did not need to be in that strong a solution to be an effective germicide, and weaker solutions which are stronger than the "iodoforms" are not burning, usually not allergic, and are highly effective germicides.

Santa Set To Attend Club Event

No one other than that genial gentleman, S. Claus, himself, will be a guest at the Marin Rod and Gun Club SPECIAL MEETING on SATURDAY EVENING, THE 16TH of December. He has made special arrangements to provide an enjoyable evening for young and old alike and is looking forward to seeing all his old friends among a host of new.

The Belrose Dancers, Marin County's own graceful and talented youngsters, will provide delightful entertainment, starting at 8:00 p.m., with a sparkling revue. Songs, dances and acrobatics will be featured in the variety program performed by the stars of to-morrow.

Following the entertainment Santa Claus will distribute "grab-bag" gifts; in order to help Santa be so generous it is necessary that everyone bring a gift of nominal value (50c) so that he might be able to redistribute the wealth—give so that Santa might.

A buffet lunch will be served after Santa has departed. There will be a table loaded with ham and turkey, appetizers and lots of other good things to eat. The diners will be serenaded with lilting music which will last on through the evening.

Plan now to attend this gala social event of the holiday season and bring the entire family for a festival of fun.

Election Set Friday Night

The annual election of officers of the Marin Rod and Gun Club will be held on Friday evening at the December gathering. Meeting will be held at the clubhouse at 8 p.m.

Nominations were held at the November meeting at which time Stephen Lato was nominated for president; Paul Ware, secretary, Rolland Hellman, treasurer.

Four directors are to be elected. The following were nominated: Gordon Dixon, Sil Ruffino, Bob Friman, Howard Chuchc, Harold Hewett, John Sterling and Warren Orlandi.

Every member is urged to attend this important meeting in order to elect your club officers for the ensuing year.

Several turkeys will be given away during the evening.

Motion pictures will be shown and refreshments will be served.

Come and bring your friends.

Prize In Painting

Ada Garfinkel of 121 Kent Avenue, Kentfield, has been awarded the Lillius Cochran prize in painting by the San Francisco Women Artists for her entry, "Event," which she submitted to their 36th annual exhibition. The show is being conducted for the entire month of December at the San Francisco Art Museum, Civic Center, San Francisco.

Striped Bass Fishing Hot

Striped bass fishing has been exceptional this year—and it still is real hot.

Fish are being taken trolling at the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge, Red Rock and the red and white buoys south of the bridge.

Trolling has been good with many kinds of spoons at different depths.

China Camp and the Hamilton Field shell bed have produced limits on bait.

Last week in this area Stephen Bond, 9, landed an 18 pound, 6 ounce stripper to capture the coveted Schenley fish award for the week.

Trolling has been good in the Racoon Straits. Richardson Bay has been a real hot spot for trolling. Limits are plentiful. When the birds are working on the live bait, trolling is always good.

All coastal streams are clearing and should be ready for steelhead fishing any day.

Several steelhead have been taken near the Russian River mouth.

With the heavy run-off 10 days ago, fishing should be good as the river bars are open in practically every coastal stream.

in Sacramento was reported by George D. Difani. Although a majority of those testifying were supporting the Bill, there is still solid opposition from the stockmen and from lumber and mining interests. The Bill (S.174) has passed the Senate but help is needed in the House: a letter in support of this measure to Congressman Aspinall and addressed to the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs will help.

The CWF 1962 decals will be distributed for sale soon. Proceeds from their sale is earmarked to assist in the Federation's legislative activities program.

Before closing, notice was taken of the Fish and Game Commission hearing last Friday. The opponents of game management made representations to the effect that they favored major revisions in the Commission's game management policy. In all, five spoke in favor of such changes whereas sixty-one sportsmen from a variety of organizations, including CWF, spoke against such changes and in favor of the Commission and its present policy.

These proposed changes are believed to be just one line of attack of the "do-gooders." Other lines probably are the outlawing of archery as a legal way to take big game and the reclassification of the dove to become a songbird rather than a game bird. We believe their ultimate objective is to STOP ALL HUNTING. The CWF is resolved to resist this group at all levels but will need help from every sportsman.

Fishermen, Take Heed

Attention, Bass Fishermen!

The law provides that the limit for striped bass is three fish, in possession.

Last year, in a case decided in Marin County Municipal Court, a fellow was fishing in Raccoon Straits, using a spreader with two hooks He hooked and landed two nice bass on the one cast. Without detaching one hook he baited up again and hooked two more bass on the same cast.

He proceeded to lift the two fish clear of the water for the purpose of detaching one fish without destroying the fish. That is when the game warden hooked him.

Attorney for the defense argued that intent was lacking of keeping the extra fish. The district attorney argued that nowhere in the law was any provision for intent; that the law clearly stated "three fish in possession.".. The court agreed with him.

The answer to this problem is: Detach the second hook before making your second cast. Of course, if you want to live dangerously, go ahead and use the spreader on all casts, but when you get hooked, don't tell them that you are a member of the Marin Rod and Gun Club because you should know the law.

Second Half Of Season On Ducks Opens

The second half of the duck season opened last Saturday for 29½ days, ending on January 7.

Weather conditions were good over the weekend, with plenty of frost, ice, fog and wind in many areas. What a contrast to the 100 degree weather when the first half of the season opened in October.

Reports vary as to good hunting over the past weekend.

Many clubs had to scrape to limit out, while others were fortunate to limit with mallards and sprig.

Ducks are in excellent condition. Last weekend they were flying high out of range in many areas.

Many sportsmen report a great many fewer ducks this year in comparison to last year.

Geese are plentiful and hunters should have little trouble securing their share if the weather is suitable for goose hunting. High winds help a great deal and birds fly closer to the marshes where hunters await them in their blinds.

Pheasant hunting was poorer than average during the past season. High winds and dry weather had its effect on the hunting. The closing weekend of the season was rainy, which hindered the pheasant hunters. Birds are now plentiful in the valleys and hatches should be good next year, providing nothing happens to the hatch.

Quail season is now open and will close January 1.

121—Used Cars For Sale

'61 BUICK SPECIAL
$2450
Here's a car that our sales manager has driven all through 1961 and has only 7,000 miles on it. It's a little two-tone blue 4-dr. sedan with Dynaflow, radio heater, tinted glass and new white-wall tires that we just put on.
We've gone over this car from stem to stern to make it as close to new as possible. It will carry a complete new car guarantee just like a new one of 12 months or 12,000 miles. It's never been registered and the purchaser will be the first owner of record.

Here's a one-owner local Station wagon that's so clean you'd never know it had been used. Ivy league green with power steering, power brakes and all the Buick luxury equipment. Low mileage. Not a scratch or mark of wear anywhere. We've taken care of this wagon since new.

'57 CENTURY
$1195
Another one-owner local wagon that we sold new in '57. Traded on new Buick wagon. Power steering and brakes. 9-passenger. All white with natural saddle leather. This Caballero Estate Wagon was one of the most striking wagons ever built—the first hardtop wagon on the American market. Very low mileage. Serviced by us since new.

'61 BUICK SPECIAL
Here's a car that our sales manager has driven all through 1961 and has only 7,000 miles on it. It's a little two-tone blue 4-dr. sedan with Dynaflow, radio heater, tinted glass and new white-wall tires that we just put on.
We've gone over this car from stem to stern to make it as close to new as possible. It will carry a complete new car guarantee just like a new one of 12 months or 12,000 miles. It's never been registered and the purchaser will be the first owner of record.

What a buy this one is for someone looking for an inexpensive, deluxe car with really low mileage. First of all its a super 88 4-Dr. sedan with hydramatic, radio, heater, power steering and brakes. We took in from local widow who put only 27,000 miles on this car. That's right—only 27,000 miles on it. Clean as a whistle throughout. SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Marin Has Lost Two Public Servants Who Served Well

Two public servants died this week, men the general public knew hardly at all, but men who were doing superb work for all of us. Both of them served in uniform, one in the togs of the Golden Gate Bridge toll force, the other in the uniform of the county sheriff's office.

One was older, with a record of nearly 25 years service. The other was young, a career ahead of him.

Automobile accidents figured in the loss of both men, although the older one died of natural causes.

Raymond T. Logan, captain of the toll forces at the Golden Gate Bridge, died at 59, reportedly of a heart attack in his San Francisco home. But the toll captain, happy, friendly and efficient, had never regained robust health since he and his wife were seriously injured in an accident several years ago.

Charles A. Braam, 27, of Novato, died in an inexplicable and seemingly unnecessary accident when his car rolled over on the Greenbrae bridge.

As assistant chief of the sheriff's civil department, Braam had made himself one of the most respected and best workers in the department. Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos called his death "a serious loss."

Few of Marin's 150,000 residents knew Deputy Sheriff Braam. Probably fewer still knew Captain Logan. Those who did, will personally miss them both. Those who did not, will have lost two men dedicated to their public duty, men who stuck to it to the end.

For their ability, devotion and friendship, they have earned the appreciation and acclaim of the people of Marin.

Roses—April To December

Some people like to gripe about Marin's climate. Too rainy in winter. Too cool the year round. Too cloudy. Too this, too that.

But we like our county's soft, benign climate. And roses like it too. Our gardens produce plump rose blooms from early April into December. Even now, we have a few really lovely roses blooming in our garden, and we are sure other gardeners have the same.

Who could ask for more than roses in December, acacias in February and cool nights for comfortable sleeping the year around?

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Donald T. Briggs of Larkspur, who used his naval medical corps knowledge and personal first aid equipment to bandage promptly five victims of an automobile accident in San Mateo County.

BRICKBATS to Coleman School vandals who in two visits stole a classroom flag, and dumped paint which, among other things, killed the pupils' pet rat "Big Al."

BOUQUETS to Sausalito City Councilmen for putting aside their own desires for a connecting road to Vista Point to approve construction of a west side parking lot at the Marin end of Golden Gate Bridge. We hope the Division of Highways integrates its construction with the current bridge and highway widening projects.

BRICKBATS to the individual who failed to pick up the hood of an old Ford from the off-ramp from Highway 101 to Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at about 1 a.m. on Dec. 3. This delayed a doctor's getting to his patient when his tire was cut and went flat. BOUQUETS to the young men who had stopped to remove that hood from the highway, but were unable to do so in time to avoid destruction of the doctor's tire. BOUQUETS to another young man who stopped and offered to help the doctor put on his spare tire.

A BOUQUET for Ted V. Cole of Novato, who steps off the County Board of Education after having served ever since the board was established in July 1956. He is unmarried.

INSTANT WATER A SUCCESS

An imaginative grocer decided to try a little joke on his customers. He set up a fancy display of "instant water" for sale at 85 cents a quart in his store in Trumansburg, N. Y.

The advertisement referred to it as the "best possible way to make coffee, particularly instant coffee, and fine for outdoor cooking."

Several purchases were made by interested patrons. One of them, a woman, took the water home and telephoned the grocer asking, "What kind of coffee do you mix with instant water?"

"Is it any good for martinis?" one man asked.

Once his amusing experiment was over, the good-natured grocer refunded money to all who bought his "instant water."

Failure to think things through is something to which we can all plead guilty. But the consequences may be tragic in these critical times. Use the intelligence that God gave you and you will not be duped in small matters or large.

"Therefore we cease not . . . to beg that you may be filled with the knowledge of His will in all wisdom."

Grave Issue In Congo Is Whether UN Shall Be Merely Talking Society

WASHINGTON—The bloody business in Katanga dramatizes the grave issue which is now before the United Nations. The issue is whether it shall revert to being merely "a conference machinery," as Dag Hammarskjold put it, or shall be also a tentative venture in international government.

The intervention of the UN as law and order collapsed in the newly independent Belgian Congo, was a bold attempt to fill a dangerous vacuum.

When the intervention was decided upon, there was no visible alternative to multiple intervention by the various powers concerned, which included not only Belgium, France, and Great Britain, but also the Soviet Union and the United States. However badly the UN intervention has gone, it can be said, it probably will be said in retrospect, that the alternative would have been much worse.

NEVERTHELESS, the intervention has worked badly. The reason is that it has never had the support of the great powers.

The UN is not a world government. It is and always has been an association of national governments in which the most powerful ones have a veto on action. This principle distinguishes the UN from a world government.

Dag Hammarskjold's bold experiment, which worked successfully enough on a small and unobtrusive scale in Palestine and in Laos, never had the full support of any government except, to a considerable degree, that of the United States.

The UN action in the Congo aroused the implacable hostility of the Soviet Union. For all practical purposes, also, the UN has been opposed, not supported, by France, Great Britain, and Belgium.

IT IS THE DIVISION of the great powers in the Congo affair which underlies the conflicts in the Congo. Were the great powers united, the UN could impose law and order instead of having to fight a series of indecisive skirmishes.

The Soviet opposition to the Hammarskjold experiment took the form of an attack on the person of the secretary general and on the structure of his office. In Soviet eyes, Hammarskjold had circumvented the veto by administrative action in the Congo, and the celebrated troika proposal was put forward as a device to introduce the veto into the office of the secretary general.

But that was not all. The Soviet Union took the position that, since it disapproved of the Congo operation, it would not pay its share of the cost. This was a demonstration that a great power, whether or not it openly exercises a veto, has the inherent power to frustrate actions which it disapproves of.

In the budgetary discussions in the UN, the French government has taken the same position as the Soviet Union. It does not approve of the Congo operation, therefore it will not help to pay for it.

IF THIS BECAME the general rule of the UN, no government would ever vote for anything unless it was prepared to pay not only its share but also the share of those who vote against the proposition.

The combined effect of the UN policies of Khrushchev and de Gaulle is in substance to eliminate from the competence of the UN all executive action to pacify areas of disorder. The UN would remain as a grand piece of conference machinery capable of debating and mediating for peace but, except in some rare case where the great powers are unanimous, incapable of enforcing peace.

Hammarskjold's experiment would be a dream and a memory, like Camelot.

Wally Hall Eyes State Superintendent's Job

By CHAPIN A. DAY

'CHIP' DAY

The race for state superintendent of public instruction is hotting up. Just as the California Association of School Administrators, meeting in San Francisco, gave the profession's nod of approval to San Diego Schools Supt. Cecil D. Hardesty, former Marin County Supt. Wallace W. Hall made his first move.

Dr. Hall, now associate state superintendent of public instruction, mailed out letters to numerous friends in the profession sampling whether he "has support and cooperation of the field" if he decides to seek the job being vacated by his boss, Roy E. Simpson.

HE HASN'T YET made up his mind, but is "giving the idea serious consideration." He will decide "during December" and should he decide to run, his letter tells his friends, "I would appreciate your support."

The timing of Wally Hall's letter is interesting because it is generally known there is no love lost between Simpson and Hardesty. It is also interesting because Wally has always been loathe to cause a split in the solid front of his profession.

Perhaps now, with certain knowledge that the CASA is on record favoring Hardesty he'll withdraw. But it's not like Wally to avoid a fight. He's quiet, polite and sometimes almost too courteous. But he's a hard, tough campaigner when he goes out after votes. And he's not afraid to try.

ALTHOUGH WALLY is a Democrat, there are some organization Democrats who are looking to the Southland for a candidate. Paul Richardson, president of the Los Angeles City Board of Education and professor at UCLA, has been catching their eye.

Some say that Democratic legislators, like San Diego Senator Hugo Fisher, Garden Grove Assemblyman Richard T. Hanna, and Carlos Bee, of Hayward, Assembly speaker pro tem, see in Richardson a candidate more to their liking than a professional superintendent.

All three of them have themselves been widely mentioned for the job, and all three of them are Democrats not yet out of the race.

Hardesty, a Republican, may well have opposition in his party from Max Rafferty, La Canada superintendent, who this week paid a visit to Marin and acted very much like a candidate.

All this talk about Republicans and Democrats may make you wonder if the state superintendent's job has been made a partisan one. It hasn't. But state Democratic leaders have been outspoken in their desire to make it so. And there is the problem of financing a statewide campaign without the aid of your party.

Those are the hard political facts of life.

A WASHINGTONIAN paid a quiet visit to Marin County this week. Frank Reynolds, who is working for the Republican National Committee, made a trip through the area talking to select people, not newspapermen, about GOP chances against Democrat Clem Miller next year.

GOP ASSEMBLYMAN William T. Bagley trotted down to Los Angeles last week for a select gathering including one Richard M. Nixon and the five other freshmen Republican assemblymen who worked together in Sacramento last session.

Things didn't turn out quite as expected, however. Nixon got tied up with his publisher or someone, and never got to the gathering. However, the six solons met with various Nixon henchmen and did a little talking and a little planning.

Then Bagley came back north and released a blast at Gov. Edmund G. Brown for "buying votes with public money and selling taxpayers down the river."

MARIN YOUNG Republicas were numerous and much in evidence at last weekend's YR state board meeting in San Francisco. The meeting passed resolutions commending Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker "for his courage and personal sacrifice"; urged outlawing of the Communist Party in California, joint labor-management drives for reduced state taxes and on technological unemployment, and proposed state fallout shelter specifications and tax incentives for those who build them.

Among those attending, besides Sen. John F. McCarthy who addressed the Saturday night banquet, were: Marin YR Pres. Charles Michals and Vice Pres. Walter McGovern; state general counsel William Keeler and his wife; William Henderson and the Thomas Mosses, Edwin Thomases, Clifford Gerstners, Richard Calahans, John Clows and William Carriers.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Marin General Does Miracles

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I am compelled to bring to notice the wonderful "miracles" achieved by Marin General Hospital's staff.

There is hardly a day goes by when we do not read about the near fatalities taken to this hospital. It is so heartwarming to read that these same people are recovering again, often in a very short time in relation to the extent of some of these injuries.

I do not make a comparison between Marin General Hospital and other hospitals here. It is just that I had occasion to view two of these people turn from seemingly hopeless cases into cheerful people again while I was an operative patient sometime back.

Since this time, I have seen this "miracle of life" repeated over and over again in the pages of the I-J. It is a wonderful thing for us all.

Blair Victim Of Minority

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Thanks to the apathy of the voters in my district, a little over 5,000 people were able to perform one of the greatest political stunts in the history of Marin County in their successful effort to recall J. Walter Blair.

It is truly a shame that Mr. Blair was the victim of the minority pressure group. The entire affair stems to prove that a minority can run our county and that the people are not aware of their real responsibilities.

Of Mr. Blair I ask forgiveness. To Peter Behr, and his recent 2,000 plus vote appointment, I give this warning: "Don't step on anyone's toes (and you can't make everybody happy). Remember, it took only 5,000 votes."

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By WAT TAKESHITA

Marin Author's Paperback Sold Out; Lots Of Problems In 'Tropic' Trial

With all the free publicity going to the man from Big Sur who wrote "Tropic of Cancer," I figured it was about time we patronized our local writers too.

So the other day I strolled into a local newsstand for a copy of "Daisy" authored by San Rafael's own Sim Wenner. But darned if her book wasn't sold out.

THERE'S MORE than meets the eye in a case like the "Tropic" jury trial held this week. You'd think they could just hand the books over to the jurors and ask them to read it.

We didn't realize the problems that have to be ironed out before the case even hits the courts. For example, the judge and lawyers had these points to consider to lay the groundwork for the trial:

Do we take the paper jackets off the book before giving it to the jury? The jacket contains favorable comments by book critics that could help the defense. The judge decided that since the jacket was bought with the book, the whole thing should go in.

Should jurors be allowed to take the book home to read?

Should instructions by the judge come at the end or beginning of trial? At least part of the instructions came at first so that jurors would have them in mind while reading the evidence.

Who would be allowed to testify as "experts" qualified to appraise the controversial book? Etc.

Big question now is: Who's gonna get the 24 volumes when the whole show is over? The last time we checked, they were in the custody of court clerk June Black, who keeps all evidence under lock and key.

THE COUNTY'S first roadblock test worked almost like a sieve, they tell me. Seems they "robbed a bank" in San Anselmo and took off in two undercover cars in opposite directions. The county was "alerted."

The undercover agents reported gleefully they slipped through half the check points undetected and were "well on our way to Reno" when the test was called off.

WONDER IF IT'S true that San Quentin doesn't censor prison mail as they used to?

One of my contacts says that this could be one of the reasons why the heroin smuggling ring operated so long without being caught.

JOHN O'BRIEN of Sausalito is probably the only man who chuckled when he got a condolence card expressing "deepest sympathy in your recent loss."

It was from a friend regretting the fact that O'Brien's boat had sunk in Sausalito harbor.

Smoking Program Shows Other Side

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Certainly all concerned parents must be grateful to the fine doctors who have courageously come forward to present the effects of smoking.

For many years only one side of the picture has been presented through endless, but highly glamorous, radio, TV, and magazine advertising. Until both sides are viewed, how can the young people be expected to exercise their power of choice intelligently?

Most students want to develop into strong, healthy adults, and will gladly follow good sensible advice given by those in places of leadership.

Congratulations to the I-J for giving all that space in the Saturday Magazine section (Dec. 2) to report the work of this special committee of the Marin Medical Society.

GIFT SUGGESTIONS

Fine Leather Apparel Always Makes Hit With Man Of House

Make the most prized and practical gift for a man's casual winter wardrobe — a warm, masculine jacket of fine leather. In deep shearling lined suede or rugged cowhide, a leather jacket at Christmas will keep him warm and comfortable through the seasons ahead.

Since a Christmas gift should be interesting and attractive as well as practical, look for some of these new styles in leather wear:

Waist-length jackets of all-leather or leather with bulky knit trim have elasticized waist bands; or are boxy with non-elastic bands in dressier styles. Large shearling or wool knit collars that can be worn up to protect the neck and ears are popular on both smooth leather and suede models. Colors range from black leather with black, gray and white trim to loden green, cocoa, tan, cream, silver gray and even pure white.

All-leather suburban coats cover the hips, and some are nearly knee-length. Warmer than ordinary overcoats, these quilted or pile-lined leather coats are snow-and-sleet-proof. They're roomy enough to wear over a suit but the right length for driving. Both boxy and belted styles are popular; diagonal flapped side pockets, double breast pockets and double breasted closings are among the new style features.

For father, the daddy of all apparel gifts is a full-length trench coat in black or ivory leather. It's a continental idea adapted to American tastes. Most leather trench coats show belt and buckle; more sophisticated but equally masculine styles have a self-leather belt without a buckle that ties in a loose knot in front.

Sponge - washable smooth leathers and washable or dry-cleanable suedes have made it possible for practical-minded mothers to gratify their sons' Christmas wish for a leather jacket "like the other kids have."

The newest idea for boys is a grown - up looking leather car coat. In hard-wearing cabretta or cowhide, these hip-length coats are ideal for bike-riding or cheering on the school team. For warmth, pick one with a wool shearling, or a quilted lining. Style details such as toggle closings, slashed knit shawl pockets and knit shawl collars appeal to young Beau Brummels.

Fine split cowhide is used in new dress - up, double breasted suburban coats for school or Sunday visiting. Lined in shearling or fur, with leather, wood or gold buttons, it's a gift that ranks with electric trains in boyhood popularity.

Present For Your Home

Give your home a Christmas present this year, with some carefully planned updating and modernizing.

You can spend as much on this Christmas gift as you care to spend. You can do a simple job of paneling a living room or den with fine wood, or you can add a new wing to your house containing bedrooms, family room, or play space for a growing family.

The cost can range from a hundred dollars or so for lumber, if you can do your own work, to thousands if you make major changes in your home.

But every member of the family will appreciate such a gift. It will outlast more perishable presents, and will add enjoyment to your daily living.

If you have an older home, or if you are just plain tired of uninteresting plaster walls, you might consider installing wood paneling. It is easy to do. Actually, you can pretty much do it yourself. You may wish to select one of the very popular golden hued woods, such as Douglas fir or west coast hemlock. You can have these in several patterns, but a simple V pattern is suggested because it does not become tiresome, as more elaborate patterns sometimes do.

Tree For Keeps

If you're tired of Christmas trees that dry out before the holidays end, but don't like the artificial ones, have you considered buying a living tree? Besides being beautiful at Christmas time, it will become a permanent addition to your landscaping when planted outdoors.

For A Gift That Lasts, Give Plants

A well-rooted Christmas tradition is the thoughtful custom of giving living plants as gifts. From the colorful poinsetta to the sophisticated dracaena, living plants are always welcomed. While some, like the poinsettia, are seasonal, many plants live indefinitely with proper care.

Here are a few essential tips to aid in the selection and care of potted plants:

Make certain the plant you choose is healthy. Sagging stems or drooping leaves are often danger signals . . . Be sure the plant is in a red clay pot. The natural porosity of a red clay pot helps maintain the proper air-moisture balance of the soil, and safeguards against over-watering.

Keep plants out of drafts, away from radiators, and avoid sudden changes in temperature. . . Test before watering. If the earth around the plant is moist, giving easily under slight thumb pressure, it doesn't need watering.

Furnishings Will Last

Home furnishings certainly come under the "lasting gifts" file. And never before have there been so many beautiful things for the home at such reasonable prices.

The same amount of dollars that bought a useless trinket last year can buy a decorative pillow, a lamp, a mirror, a small throw rug, linens for the table or bath, to name but a few gifts for the home. A few more dollars will buy an occasional chair or a coffee table. For that young married couple or the hard-working bachelor girl who lives alone, a down payment on some piece of furniture they have been yearning for but just have not had the down payment would make an ideal gift.

New Products Await Shopper

With more and more new products arriving on the market every day, it's practically impossible to find a man or woman who "has everything."

That makes Christmas shopping less of a problem for everyone. Gifts can be found easily that will please even the most particular person.

Many of these new gift ideas can be found among electric housewares. New items include electric sheets, automatic can openers, electric knife sharpeners, walk-around hair dryers, electric coffee brewers, electric corn poppers, and hair cutting instruments with special attachments that help make nearly everyone a master barber.

Among the electric housewares that have been redesigned and improved to the point where they are virtually new items are electric blankets with one or two automatic heat controls, coffeemakers, shavers, broilers and rotisseries, hot trays, skillets, and other electric cooking utensils.

Don't Allow Fire To Ruin The Holidays

Don't let a destructive home fire spoil your Christmas holidays. That's the advice of fire prevention officials, who recommend caution in handling Christmas trees and gift wrappings.

The fire safety experts say that Christmas trees should be kept as moist as possible while they are in homes, and gift wrappings should be disposed of quickly and safely so that they can't catch flame or add fuel to a fire.

An excellent way to keep a Christmas tree moist is to place it in a galvanized steel laundry tub filled with sand. Water can be added to the sand as needed to keep the tree fresh and fire-resistant.

A practical way to use this idea is to place a Christmas tree in its usual holder and then put the holder and tree base in the tub. After sand and water are added to the tub, it is almost impossible to tip over the tree — another safety factor.

When placing lights on a Christmas tree, be sure they are in good repair and do not come into contact with the tree's water supply.

Gift wrappings are special hazards, because gift packages are opened when people are carefree and careless. One cigarette spark may set wrappings on fire.

A safe practice is to collect all gift wrappings and place them in a galvanized steel refuse pail. This type of pail has a close-fitting cover which protects flammable wrapping materials from fire. The sturdy, steel pail can't burn, of course, so even if its contents catch fire, flames are confined to safe areas.

Glove Problem Now Eliminated

For some reason or other, gifts of gloves and Christmas seem to go hand in hand. This year, there's no problem at all in making your selections —thanks to the fit-them-all virtues of new stretch gloves.

You'll find smart styles in string or yarn and leather combinations that are ideal for driving and winter sports, smart leather or suede stretch styles with fur cuffs and lining or soft, supple leathers with knit linings.

For wear with everything this side of formal wear, there are lovely stretchies in crochet-look styles.

For day time as well as date time, there are a host of shorty, 4, 6 and 8-button lengths in everything from stretch knits to stretch satins.

Complementing the season's short-sleeved and bare-arm fashions, the above-the-elbow glove, in most elegant fabrics, wins honors in the s-t-r-e-t-c-h.

Flavorsome Gifts

Living herbs in small clay pots will be cherished as Christmas gifts by housewives who appreciate their flavorsome contributions to year-round cuisine. Rosemary, chives and other appetizing herbs are available at garden centers in three-inch clay pots.

Guitaritis Hits Marin As Everyone Strums

By CORENA GREEN

A San Francisco columnist, with tongue-in-cheek, recently reported that a new malady was sweeping the city. He termed it "guitaritis," and the symptoms were described in considerable detail.

"Guitaritis" is slowly creeping into Marin County and has already made considerable headway onto the Tiburon Peninsula as a group of women there can testify. The women meet weekly for guitar lessons at the home of Mrs. Benton Mathews of Belvedere and, under the tutelage of Glenn Carlson of the Creative Music School of San Rafael, have progressed in six short weeks from the beginner to the intermediate stage.

Guitar lessons were originally the idea of the Reed Unit of the Reed District Parent-Teacher Club which organized them at the children's level as an after - school, extracurricular activity. So many children signed up that it was necessary to bring in two teachers and conduct several classes. Soon the mothers were requesting an adult class.

At the first lesson every member of the class learned to play "Tom Dooley" and immediately fell victim to the disease. Latest reports from the class indicate the women have advanced from simple strumming to a more sophisticated plink, plonk, plonk and to such obviously intricate songs as "Good Night, Irene" and "Battle of Jericho." And the end is not in sight.

I'm A Lucky Man,' Says Andy Pedroli

Barber And Humanitarian, He Enjoys Life Fully

By WAT TAKESHITA

A passerby meeting him on the street is sometimes startled by the man's striking resemblance to Nikita Khrushchev. But there the similarity ends.

Andrew (Andy) Pedroli, 64, owner of Elite Barber Shop in San Rafael for 36 years, has built up a host of friends who swear by him, not at him.

Although Andy attends no specific church, close acquaintances describe him as a humanitarian "with a heart as Christian as the best church goer."

IF YOU'VE ever attended meetings of Scout Troop 18 in San Rafael's Scout Hall, you would have seen Andy sitting quietly in the background overseeing the youngsters like a doting father. For 24 years he has never missed a weekly meeting of Troop 18, the same troop where his two sons, Alan and Ray, got their start in Scouting.

Many a friend chats with Andy while sitting in the barber chair on B Street to get the latest reports on fishing and hunting conditions. But a customer probably never really gets to know Pedroli unless one day he becomes ill and finds himself bedridden.

In walks Andy Pedroli to the man's bedside, equipped with clipper, razor and a friendly smile. There at the side of the bed, the ailing man gets a haircut and a shave and the usual report on fishing and hunting conditions.

Pedroli is no smooth talker or glib businessman. Conversation to him is a means of expressing ideas. And he gets his point across with down-to-earth succinctness. He hides behind no fancy phrase or pompous clothes.

When Andy walks in, dressed in comfortable sport shirt and gives you a haircut and shave at the hospital, or takes you on his skiff to snare a limit of bass, or offers help in straightening out a problem youngster, the actions speak louder than words.

His reputation was built, not by headlines or loudspeakers, but on these small acts of humanity administered quietly over the past 36 years. Just as quietly, by word of mouth, his friends throughout the county pay tribute to the immigrant Italian who pulled himself up by the bootstraps and made good in the traditional American way: "Now there goes a real citizen; one helluva man!"

PEDROLI lives with his wife Marie in a modest home at 44 Pleasant Lane, San Rafael. When he is not at the barber chair or hunting or fishing, you can find him working in his garden. His pride and joy are two large orange trees at the front entrance and the peach and chestnut trees which he himself grafted with a half dozen

THE HAND THAT began barbering in Italy 50 years ago is as steady today in San Rafael as it was then. Here Andrew (Andy) Pedroli is shown at work in his Elite Barber Shop on B Street. He is dead set against retirement, but makes time for other interests in addition to his business.

AT HIS ELITE BARBER SHOP, Andy Pedroli, far right, gives tonsorial attention to the needs of George Soldavini, who was his first customer in San Rafael 35 years ago. Other customers, right to left, are Henry Sanders (a patron for 35 years), Bill Lee, Manny Charnow (25 years) and Carroll Walker. The barbers, also from the right, are Pedroli, Vasal E. Funari, Farrell Crone, Fred Miller, and Alan Pedoli, Andy's son who manages the shop. (Independent-Journal photos) different varieties on the same tree.

Born in the small town of Ispara along Lago Magioro near the Swiss border, Pedroli was one of 13 brothers and sisters. From age 12, Andy began as an apprentice barber working for his father. In 1916, at age 18, the Italian army called him for two years service with a machine gun section, fighting against Austria. He got out of World War I without injury except for a bad case of malaria.

In 1919, Andy, like many others from his village, sailed for California. He worked as barber in the North Beach area of San Francisco, then moved to South of Market. He met Marie Mazino and married her on May 5, 1924. They moved to San Rafael in 1927, and Andy opened his barber shop at the same spot where it is now located.

Pedroli had never heard of Boy Scouts until his son Alan came home one day in 1937 and announced proudly he was joining the Scouts.

Father Pedroli, a bit skeptical, recalls: "I went down one night to see who was the leader." He sat in the corner as the scoutmaster talked to 32 boys. From that day on, he was sold on the program. "There is nothing more wonderful than the Scout law and oath."

He saw his son Alan graduate from Scouting, followed by son Ray, six years younger. Pedroli has seen hundreds of similar boys go through Troop 18. It's not so much the routine of Scouting and the skills they learn that impresses Pedroli. It's the end results—what happens to the boys themselves when they grow up.

"OF ALL THE Boy Scouts I come in touch with, I never see one Boy Scout that he got in really bad trouble," Pedroli notes.

Only several weeks ago, Andy sat as guest to watch the San Quentin Parole Board in operation. The message he got from that hearing was the same: No Boy Scout who achieved the rank of first class or better ever entered San Quentin. "If you save one boy from the penitentiary, that is quite an accomplishment."

In his work with the Scouts, Pedroli has called on each father and mother to attend the courts of honor. "Lucky if out of 30 families I get 10 parents," Pedroli asserts.

Pedroli is a member of the Lions Club, which sponsors Troop 18. He has helped put on picnics and barbecues for the boys, and on some occasions has induced the Marin Rod and Gun Club to invite the boys for a day of fishing off the pier at San Quentin Point.

Andy's interest in youth is matched by his consideration for the aged. No young man

A FULL CROP of hair was atop the head of young Andrew Pedroli when this photograph was taken in about 1919. That was the year he came to California.

IT WAS A PROUD moment for sportsman Pedroli when he posed for this picture with the 100-pound sturgeon he had caught. He recalls that the big fish nearly pulled him from his skiff, dragging the boat for a mile and a half before finally giving up the battle.

BUSY ANDY

Finds Time For Aged And Youth

himself, Pedroli nevertheless has the energy and drive to help the old get a new lease on life.

Take the case of Manny Charnow, Mr. Senior Citizen of Marin. Charnow retired from his delicatessen business about 15 years ago. But lack of activity and boredom soon began to tell. Andy noticed Charnow's plight and decided it was time to take his friend fishing.

Pedroli packed Charnow into his skiff, took him out near China Camp, cast the line, and handed Charnow the rod.

Manny still recalls with boy-boyish enthusiasm the 20-pound striper that he hauled in on that first cast. He's been a confirmed fisherman since then. After Manny's latest hospitalization and surgery, it was Pedroli who helped him back on his feet.

"He just about carried me onto the boat and even reeled in the fish for me if I was too weak," says Manny. "He saved my life."

Fishing and hunting are Pedroli's favorite sports. Many a Marin sportsman has been invited to Pedroli's duck cabin and 30 acres near Willows. They call it "Pedroli's Paradise."

But Pedroli's happiest moments appear to be when he is out hunting with his two sons. Both Alan, who manages the Elite Barber Shop, and Ray, who is employed at DeLong's Chevrolet, are good shots. Ray is exceptional with a gun. At age 12, he was a champion skeet shooter, hitting 24 out of a possible 25.

Both served Uncle Sam, Alan in the Navy and Ray in Korea with the Army.

"We have all seen too much of war," Pedroli shakes his head. "I hope my grandchildren don't have the same experience."

Although he had no other formal education in this country, Pedroli made sure he studied the United States Constitution at San Rafael night school. In 1927, he won his American citizenship with flying colors before the late Judge Edward I. Butler.

Pedroli has never been back to Italy. "I have no desire to go back. Much too busy hunting and fishing here," he explains.

Retirement is the last thing in his mind. "No, never retire," says the active Pedroli. He likes to oversee the business he built up. "And I meet old customers and get a big bang out of it."

His biggest thrill in fishing came in the summer of 1959 near Marin Islands. A 100-pound, 76-inch sturgeon pulled his skiff a mile and a half before Pedroli was able to reel the monster to the boat. But that was only half the battle. He had a gaff, but the hook almost straightened out from the weight. Besides, his two companions had to stay on the other side of the skiff to keep the boat from capsizing.

Andy hung on to the sturgeon, while his two friends hung on to Andy. They finally inched the fish into the boat without overturning.

Another thriller came last Nov. 17 when 30 pounds of bass struck his spreader line and began pulling in all directions. When Andy finally pulled it in, he had a fish on each hook, about 15 pounds apiece.

His favorite fishing spots are the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge and the Brothers across the bay.

Andy belongs to many organizations — Lions, Marin Rod and Gun, Druids, Woodcraft, Woodmen of the World, Eagles, Chamber of Commerce, Master Barbers Assn., Ducks Unlimited and California Duck Hunting Assn.

HE HAS been ribbed about his resemblance to the notorious Russian but goes along with the gag, contributing his best Khrushchev grin. He has been introduced at some meetings as "the distinguished visitor from Russia," whereupon he gets up and dead pans: "I'll tell my cousin Nikita to drop the A-bomb somewhere else."

But in his more serious moments he has spoken out, and the town has listened. One of Pedroli's most determined fights was aimed at the city council for changing B Street to parallel parking. He wanted to retain angle parking, at least for one side of the street. Some of his acquaintances claim he's still fighting that war.

Even today, you mention parking and traffic, and you'll get a half hour tirade out of Pedroli. He's convinced lack of parking is taking business away from town. He sees a definite need for some all-day parking lots, so that store employees can get their own cars off the street and open up spaces for customers.

ANDY HAS seen his brothers and sisters make good in their adopted country. Joe operates a nursery, Fred is a cement contractor, and his brother-in-law operates Carcano Construction. Some have passed on—Mrs. Henry Bormolini, and brother Umberto.

Andy looks to the future with rosy optimism. "I got a nice family; I'm a lucky man. And there's lots of bass in the bay. You wanna go out this Sunday?"

THE FAMOUS GRIN of Andy Pedroli, barber shop proprietor, property owner and enjoyer of life, was very much in evidence when he posed here outside his home at 44 Pleasant Lane in San Rafael. It is easy to see from this photo why Pedroli is frequently ribbed for his resemblence to Soviet dictator Khrushchev. Independent-Journal proto)

'Iron Horses' Made Of Plastic

Almost as much a part of Christmas as the tree and the tinsel is the electric train.

Throughout the land on Christmas morning thousands of little boys — and their fathers—will enjoy the thrill of playing with the new "real as life" model railroad that was delivered by Santa Claus.

A sizeable number of the cars and other components of those HO trains were manufactured right here in Marin.

The name of the company is Pioneer Enterprises Inc. The proprietary products of that firm are marketed under the name of Kurtz Kraft, technically a division of Pioneer Enterprises.

OFFICERS OF the corporation are Peter H. Bechtel, president, and Albert J. Kurtz, vice president.

The two men merged firms which they formerly operated under separate ownership and management. Kurtz' Kurtz Kraft plastic products were manufactured in Point Reyes Station, and that concern was the subject of a Marin Magazine feature story several months ago. Until the merger, Bechtel's Pioneer Enterprises Inc. was largely a machine shop and not engaged in the manufacturing field.

Products of Pioneer Enterprises in its building on Jordan Street in San Rafael's Bret Harte industrial area include in addition to the model railroads, other novelty and gift items plus industrial products. The specialty of the plant is injection molding, and Bechtel and Kurtz say they believe their concern is the only firm in Marin doing the high pressure molding.

The Kurtz Kraft label is attached to two lines of products—the model railroad output and a handicraft line for children.

In the model railroad field, Pioneer Enterprises is currently producing HO scale model railroad items in both narrow and standard gauge, plus refrigerator cars and box cars which are accurate models of the Pullman-Standard cars. In the planning stage are additional freight cars, passenger cars and right-of-way structures. Those items will be offered, Bechtel and Kurtz say, as soon as engineering, product design and tooling preliminaries are completed.

STAFF ARTIST John Regan is a key man in the production of the HO gauge products.

(HO, incidentally, is a "trade" term denoting a scale half the size of the standard O gauge for toy and model railroads.)

Most of the Kurtz Kraft HO items are made primarily of plastic, although some metal and other materials are used. The basic material is an impact polystyrene chosen because it permits great detail as well as a sturdy product.

The plastic parts are injection molded on molding machines ranging in size from a small six-gram capacity machine up to a 16-ounce machine. The names, however, are not truly indicative of their size. The 16-ounce molding machine, for example, weighs roughly 32,000 pounds.

The plastic parts are molded under tremendous pressure, sometimes as much as 20,000 pounds to the square inch. Tremendous locking clamps hold the molds shut with as high as 300 tons of force.

The Kurtz Kraft line of model railroad items are actual scale models, and the officers of the corporation pride themselves on the fact that they are meticulous in making certain that every part and detail is accurate and true to prototype. To insure this accuracy and fidelity of detail, actual plans and photographs of the prototypes are used in preparing elaborate master models

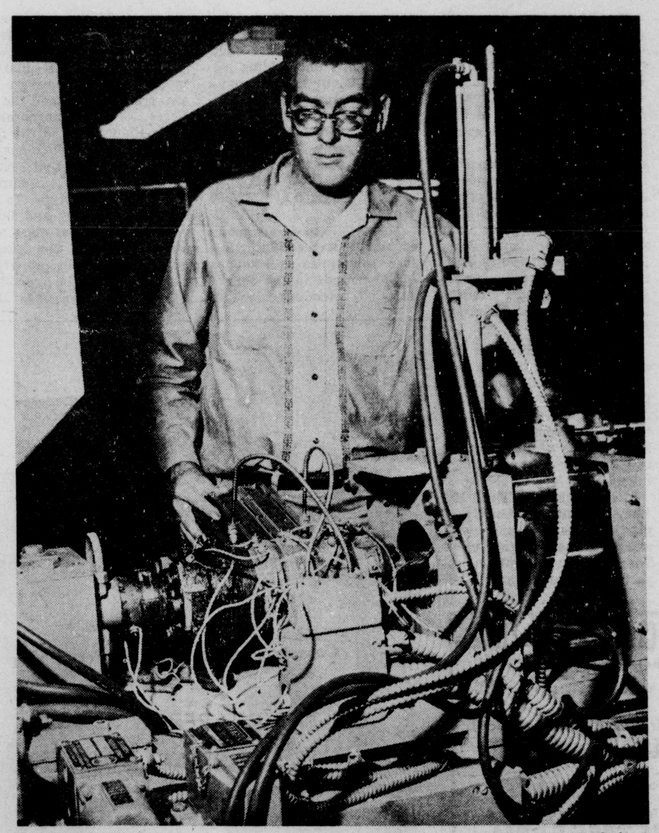
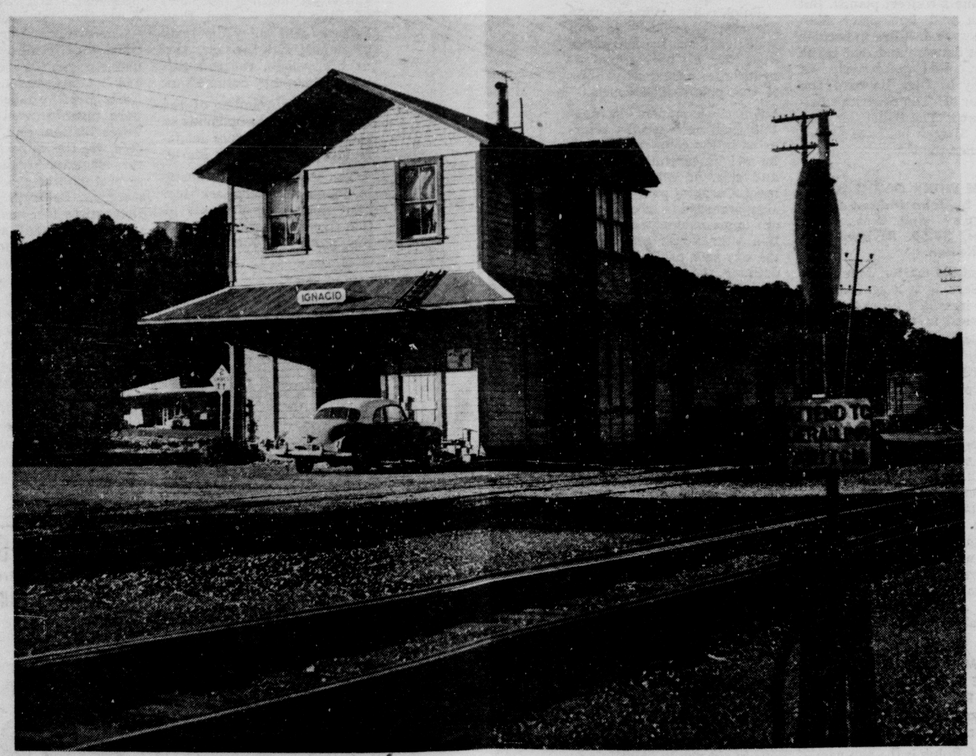
Bringing The Excitement Of Railroading Into The Home



PETER BECHTEL, partner in Pioneer Enterprises Inc. of San Rafael, looks at one of the firm's new pressure molding machines which is used to turn out sections of plastic ties for narrow gauge model railroad track. Parts are molded under pressure as great as 20,000 pounds to the square inch.



THE IGNACIO STATION of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad will be reproduced as a scale model for national distribution by Pioneer Enterprises of San Rafael as part of its HO railroading output. The Ignacio station was chosen for the model because it is typical of the small railroad station, the manufacturers explain. (Independent-Journal photos) which in turn are used in making the molds from which the finished products are finally turned out.

The master models are made many times the size of the finished parts in order that every detail can be carefully hand-worked into them. After the master models are completed, they are turned over to the tooling department where they are used to engrave and machine the various pieces of tool steel that will be combined to form the mold from which the final parts will be produced.

ACCURACY in the scale detail, the fidelity to the prototype and precision fits are carefully checked through every step of production.

Once the model items are finished, they might be destined for an honored spot beneath a Christmas tree any place in the United States, for the Kurtz Kraft products are widely distributed throughout the country. Far more than mere toys, they bring with them the true color, feeling and excitement of railroading into the home.

A project currently occupying the attention, skill and creative abilities of Pioneer Enterprises personnel is the production of a model of the colorful Ignacio station of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. It won't be in time for Christmas this year. But next year, you can bet, it is going to be a popular item with Santa's "customers" of all ages.

TINY PLASTIC PARTS for a switchstand made by Pioneer Enterprises Inc. of San Rafael fit neatly in the hand of an employee. The parts, of polystyrene, are assembled by the purchaser.

The Gold Country In Photos

GOLD STRIKES AND GHOST TOWNS by Todd Webb, Doubleday and Co., 160 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

PHOTOGRAPHER Todd Webb is responsible for both pictures and text in the new book, "Gold Strikes and Ghost Towns," a "tour" of the West's historic gold-mining country.

Todd Webb has established himself as one of this country's most honored photographers. He is also a man much interested in and with considerable knowledge of western history and mining engineering. Here he parlays his varied skills into a book that the student of Western Americana will be unable to resist.

The book is divided into four sections — California's Mother Lode, Nevada's Comstock Lode, Colorado's Pikes Peak country, and the gold and silver mining camps of Idaho-Montana-Wyoming.

Into all these historic localities Webb has gone with his cameras, capturing the remaining remnants of one of the most colorful aspects of the Old West.

Dredge-scarred valleys and hillsides, deserted ghost towns, scattered ruins of once bustling camps, restoration projects (some authentic, some gaudy tourist traps), cities which have forgotten their minings pasts and gone on to even greater glory in other fields, quiet towns which survived but remain today pretty much as they were decades ago after the initial excitement of the gold fever had subsided — they all live in Webb's photographs.

This is, however, far more than just a picture book. Webb has also put together an informative and lively text, detailing the history of the towns and camps, relating interesting anecdotes from their past, analyzing their present status and future prospects.

Grasshopper Creek, Hangtown, Red Dog, Rough and Ready, You Bet, the Little Johnny Mine, Chinese Camp, Jimtown, Fairplay, Holy Moses Mine — those are among the names that pop up in this book along with such more familiar ones as Virginia City, Columbia, Durango, Grass Valley, Mariposa, Leadville and Nevada City.

BIRD OF FIRE by Olga Maynard, Dodd, Mead and Co., 201 pages, $4. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Here is the story of the American girl of Indian descent who became the prima ballerina Maria Tallchief, representing the classical dance from this country in the ballet capitals of the world.

But first, of course, came the early training of this obedient young girl, whose father was an Osage chief on the Oklahoma reservation where Betty Marie Tallchief (Maria) was born. Her mother, Ruth Porter Tallchief, was an American of Scottish, Dutch and Irish ancestry, and it was she who saw talent in the youngster and urged her to become a concert pianist. But Maria and her sister Marjorie were destined to become ballet dancers and that is the story, told effectively if simply by Olga Maynard, the author of "The American Ballet" and "The Ballet Companion." Sixteen pages of photos enhance the text.

THE WITCH OF THE LOWTIDE by John Dickson Carr, Harper and Bros., 215 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

That old master, John Dickson Carr, is at it again in the field in which he excels, the historical mystery.

This time his setting is the England of 1907. Neurologist David Farth finds himself and the woman he loves involved in the slaying of a blackmailer.

There are times when the story seems to bog down a bit in talk. But this is more than compensated for by the delightful authenticity with which Carr pictures Edwardian England. And the puzzle with which he confronts his readers is an intriguing one, his solution entirely acceptable. All in all, some highly enjoyable "escapist" reading.

COMMONSENSE ABOUT CRIME AND PUNISHMENT by C. H. Rolph, Macmillan Co., 175 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

C. H. Rolph is the pen name of C. R. Hewitt, former London police inspector turned journalist. Because of that background, it might be expected that he would exhibit the "hard-boiled" policeman's attitude toward criminals and their punishment. He does not.

While no "do-gooder," he does debunk a great deal of the current public attitude toward crime and some aspects of police and court procedure. His approach is more that of the sociologist than the criminologist. And his greatest emphasis comes in his final chapter when he pleads for a revitalized concept of "aftercare" for discharged prisoners. The "moral prison" which the ex-convict encounters outside the walls often defeats all chances for rehabilitation, he claims.

Rolph relies primarily upon his own experience in and statistics from British police work. But his background also includes an extensive tour of U.S. prisons and courts.

American readers, incidentally, will be especially interested in the chapter in which he weighs carefully the pros and cons of capital punishment. Corporal punishment is also accorded a chapter, as are imprisonment and probation after Rolph gets out of the way such preliminaries as defining the different forms of crime, examining their causes and discussing their detection and prosecution.

SEA GULLS — AND SUCH by Lillian Grace Paca, Pacific Books, 32 pages, $1. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The author-illustrator of this Palo Alto-published booklet tells you straight off that it is strictly a non-technical work. Its purpose, she says, is to help you answer the question — "What is that bird?"—when it concerns our shore birds along the Pacific Coast, and then to supply you with a bit of reliable information concerning the bird after identification has been made.

The various gulls, the terns, cormorants, sandpipers, killdeer, pelicans, loons, grebes, and a number of others are covered with simple black and white drawings plus descriptions to aid you in identifying them. The text then adds some brief facts on habitat and habits.

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By Bert Brown, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael, Bel Aire, & Fairfax, GL 4-4792

"CAN IMITATION SUEDE BE DRYCLEANED?"

Your suede cloth jacket can be drycleaned, perfectly. However, the National Institute of Drycleaning has received a number of complaints about color change, fabric deterioration and what is termed a "loss of flocking" in imitation suede. "Flocking" is the nap which is applied to cloth by an adhesive, giving the garment an appearance of genuine suede. This flocking comes off more rapidly in places where the wear is greatest, of course, however tests reveal that the adhesive is really at fault. Exposure to light breaks down the adhesive binder and the nap falls off.

Another complaint about imitation suede fabrics is color change. Drycleaning does not cause this. Again light is at fault and tests show that colors darken under exposure to light. The third weakness is fabric deterioration and again, tests reveal that light and storage for a period of time causes the adhesive to oxidize, creating a damaging acid condition in the fabric.

Yes, your imitation suede jacket can be drycleaned but light, time and storage can and probably will damage the garment. Do not blame your drycleaner when that happens. He didn't do it.

STEREO NOTES

Small Firm Turns Out Big Records

By JOHN SUNIER

The little New York record company, Monitor, is rapidly overshadowing other small folk-music labels with a series of excellent releases, especially in the area of international folk music.

The recordings are all highest fidelity (some in stereo), the notes are complete and readable, and the packaging is neat and attractive. An added item are the complete foreign language texts included in many of the albums, together with a complete transliteration, so that you may "sing along" no matter what the language.

RUSSIAN FOLK SONGS—featuring the Piatnitsky, Siberian, Ural, and Voronezh Folk Choruses—MF 351 — is a new Monitor album including this added item, the complete texts. It is really Volume 3 of the company's highly acclaimed series of Russian Folk Songs. The pre-eminently Russian art of choral singing is highlighted in this concert by popular Soviet vocal ensembles. The accompanying orchestras of folk instruments, with banduras and bayans outstanding, provide lots of added interest. Interesting also are the lyrics of some of the songs, especially one "Chastushki" or nonsense song which seems almost too lively to be true:

"There is no bridge over the river, one must wade to cross it. Don't long to go to the West—rather do just the opposite . . . Don't be angry with me—I am leaving for the East to build an atom station."

SWITZERLAND — Schottisches, Landler, Waltzes, Polkas, played by the Landler Bands of Jost Ribary and Heiri Meier—MF 353 — also available in stereo.

This is one of the best and most varietous lp's of Swiss instrumental music I've heard, and I've heard quite a bit, being brought up on it by Swiss parents. Aside from a few whoops and hollers, not much yodeling here, if that gets on your nerves as it does mine. The typical "Landler" band consists of a loud clarinet, Swiss accordion (smaller and lighter than standard squeeze-boxes) and a bass fiddle played with bow. The infectious good humor and cheeriness of this music is hard to escape.

BOMBA! — Music of the Caribbean—MF 355.

The Bomba is a noisy musical game played by the Negroes who live along the Puerto Rican coasts, dating in origin back to Africa. In the old days, a bomba would start at dawn and continue unabated until sundown of the second day. The drums used are heavy and deep-toned.

Another kind of drum is heard on three tracks of this varied albums of Caribbean music. This is the delightful steel band, a recent "discovery" in U. S. musical circles. It's a very exciting album.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

Many people ask us if there is any way they can start a component stereo system instead of buying a portable stereo for the children. Actually there is. Our Award Stereo Phono System is just such a building block. The combination consists of a high quality stereo amplifier control system in its own table top cabinet. (Harmon Kardon Award Series), four-speed record changer with stereo cartridge and diamond needle mounted on a table top base (the new Garrard Auto Slim changer), and two of the new Jensen X10 speaker systems mounted in walnut table top cabinets. Our special price for this entire Stereo Phono Component System is only $239.00, no more than the better quality portables. The advantage of our starter system is that you can add a matching AM-FM multiplex radio tuner, a stereo tape recorder, and large speaker systems for the living room. The quality of components provide full-range distortion-free music reproduction.

There are a few new products now available as additions to your present Hi-Fi stereo system. The newest is the Jensen X10 extension speaker. A small compact oiled walnut inclosure with speakers and individual volume control measuring 7¼" h. by 13" w. by 4⅝" d. for only $29.75. An excellent additional speaker for other rooms in the home. Sets right on a table top.

Another new addition is the Sony Tape Deck, which records and plays back stereo four-track tapes when added to your component system. It comes with provisions for sound-on-sound, two speed, recording electronics, and playback preamps for $199.50. Visit our store and see these new items.

Muir Beach Writer Gives True South Seas Picture

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS by Charles A. Borden. Macrae Smith, 246 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Judy Stone.

CHARLES A. BORDEN
He deals with reality

A sensitive appreciation for the reality, as well as the romance, of the South Sea Islands is apparent in every line of Charles A. Borden's new book on Micronesia, Polynesia and Melanesia.

The Muir Beach writer, who spent more than 20 years as a master mariner in the South Seas, loves the islands, but doesn't believe in telling fairy tales about them.

The charm and beauty that inspired Melville, Stevenson and Gaugain are still there; there are still stone-age peoples in Melanesia and occasional cannibals still lurk in the interior of New Guinea; but the girls in Tahiti may be wearing copies of a Dior gown, teen-age Samoans beat out "The Beer Barrel Polka" in their high school bands, and space-age missile facilities take up most of the land area of the Marshall Islands.

CONSIDER what happened when the Atomic Age came to Bikini: At the request of the United States, Chief Judea and his 166 subjects agreed to give up their lifelong homes and begin anew on Rongerik Atoll, 109 miles to the southeast, so that the H-bombs could be tested.

Borden writes: "Bikinians believe that the soul of their departed ones return to keep a loving and protective watch over the living. The uprooted people felt that their loved ones would never be able to find them so far away from the only island with which they were identified. Every tree and every rock on his three to five acre home has real value and meaning to a Marshallese. To be exiled is to be condemned to die a little.

"After an unhappy year on Rongerik, the Bikinians were transferred to distant Kwajalein. After another unhappy year at that atoll, they were moved en masse to Kili Island in the extreme south of the Marshalls.

"What has happened to the Bikinians would be comparable, in the Marshallese sense, to moving a whole California town of grape growers to the Nevada desert, then to Pennsylvania and finally to Canada.

WHEN THE hydrogen bomb got out of control in 1954 all the people of Rongelap were uprooted from their homes and moved to Majuro for three years of exile and treatment for burns and radiation sickness. The United Nations report stated: "About 90 percent of the people affected developed skin lesions . . . No assurance could be given that cancer would not develop at the site of skin lesions."

The Marshall Islands are still worried about how to protect their coconut trees, the fish in their lagoons and their drinking water from radiation contamination.

Meanwhile, jet planes are making the once remote islands of Tahiti and French Oceania a part of the popular tourist scene. French officials are counting on the jets to save their economy, the taxi drivers are happy about new business, and Tahitian nationalist leaders resent "seeing our people making monkeys of themselves for the entertainment of tourists."

The picturesque port of Papeete, Borden points out, is now the only town left in Polynesia where the major commerce is still carried on in grand old sailing schooners which sail in from the Marquesas, Tuamotus, Gambiers or the Iles Sous le Vent with copra, vanilla and mother-of-pearl shell. Despite the transportation speedup, it is still possible to board a copra vessel and visit some of the remotest and loveliest islands in the Pacific, islands that can be reached only by trading schooner.

Borden's affectionate and knowledgeable description of these islands and their people is guaranteed to give the most unimaginative stay - at - home the islands wanderlust. Some handsome photographs complement the book, but the publisher should have included a more detailed map of the islands.

The two and a half million people of the South Seas which cover one-eighth of the world's surface are a widely mixed group. In his compact, fascinating book, Borden tells about the history, diversity and present developments in Micronesia; U.S. Trust Territory including Guam, the Carolines, Palau, Yap, Truk, Ponape and the Marshall Islands; French Oceania, Fiji, Tonga and the British Pacific Islands, Papua and New Guinea, Western Samoa and American Polynesia.

As to the future, Borden writes: "As the impetus toward self-government is increasingly felt all over the South Pacific, the status-quo, pro - administration leaders often called 'yes chiefs' are losing out to younger, more nationalistic - minded men. Some fast-rising leaders, thinking beyond their council meetings and island boundaries, are beginning to take an all-Pacific view. Those who are able to take a world view realize that the key problem in the Pacific in the next decade is not the Indonesians against the Dutch, nor the United States against China or Russia but the survival of the human race."

Marin Living

A Christmas Tree The Year Around

The idea of a living Christmas tree indoors appeals to every member of the family. Not only can it be brought in and decorated each holiday season, but it can be enjoyed as a tubbed specimen on deck or patio for the rest of the year.

Such a tree obviously saves time and money in the long run, and its initial cost (which is not much more than a cut tree) is written off in the first year or two. Beyond this, you have the other great advantage of freshness — an advantage you really appreciate only when you take your tree down and out in the same condition you brought it in.

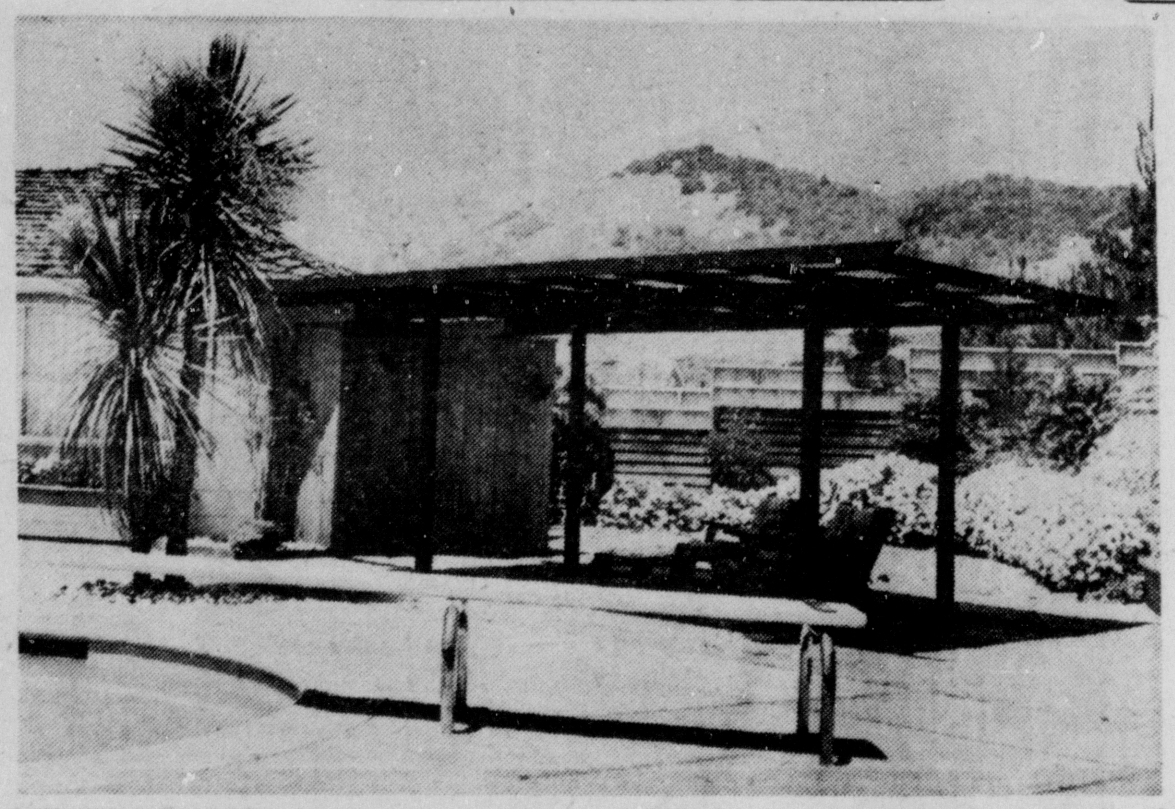
Many people like the idea of their Christmas tree growing up with the family. Children, especially, will enjoy having the same tree year after year and most of them will have to be restrained from bringing it in weeks before Christmas Day.

Many conifers are suitable for container growth and even the tallest of them such as Norway Spruce will be reusable for several years. As every gardener knows, containers have an inhibiting effect on the growth of any shrub.

Drop in on a nurseryman this week and check over his supply of conifers in containers. The spruces—the delicately blue Colorado Spruce or Norway Spruce — will catch your eye for their typical Christmas tree look. The densely foliaged Dwarf Alberta Spruce makes an attractive tree, but seek only the larger specimens. Even at maturity these little spruces are rarely more than head high.

The use of long-needle pines has become popular in recent years and for this the Monterey Pine is a good choice because of its bushy, conical shape when young. It's a fast grower, though, so you can't count on too many years for it in the tub. Scotch Pine has shorter needles than Monterey Pine and a similar bushy habit makes it suited as a Christmas tree.

There are dozens of different conifers for you to choose from.



THIS SIMPLE ARBOR framework was designed and constructed by landscape architect Scott Tilden for Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Diehl of San Rafael. It can be covered with a bamboo screening or vines for controlled shade. The vertical boarded section houses a pool filter and heater.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Winter is the season to set out California's three perennial vegetables — artichoke, asparagus and rhubarb. They have ornamental as well as food value.
- Chances are a good many gardeners haven't even lifted last year's gladiolus bulbs, but the season to plant new ones has arrived. Successive plantings at three week or month intervals will provide a continuous harvest of the colorful spikes from spring into the early fall.
- If you are shopping for a plant as a Christmas gift, don't overlook the lovely rhododendron even though it won't show color until mid-spring. If current color is a must, Camellias and Azaleas are good selections.
- If Bermuda grass is taking over your lawn and you aren't happy about it, winter is a good time to dig it up and start from scratch.

THE LIVING ROOM of the new George Dobbs home at 85 Estates Drive, Sleepy Hollow, stands as a tribute to the interior decorator's taste and art. Mr. and Mrs. George Dobbs consulted Jack Boyd, decorator with Bellach's Furniture and Design Center, San Rafael, at the outset in the furnishing and decorating of their four bedroom house. (Photos by Ken Molino)

THE FAMILY ROOM in the Dobbs home presented a challenge to Boyd in that his selections had to be most practical as well as attractive since the swimming pool is reached directly from that room. He chose a floor of heavy gauge inlaid linoleum representing flagstone, and rattan furniture, terra cotta and olive green, done in naugahyde. Draperies for a 20-foot wide window (not seen in photos) is in panel form and in four different colors — natural (to pick up the color of the floor), brown for the rattan, and terra cotta and olive green for the furniture. Original watercolor over the fireplace also contains all those colors plus blue.

SLEEPY HOLLOW HOME

It's A Decorator's Dream

The interior decorator's dream is to be consulted at the very outset by the homeowners in the decorating and furnishing of a new home.

Jack Boyd of Bellach's Furniture and Design Center, San Rafael, was presented with such an opportunity in the new home of contractor George Dobbs at 85 Estate Drive, Sleepy Hollow.

"It's a wonderful challenge for a decorator to work all the way with the owners in making their dream home come true," Boyd says.

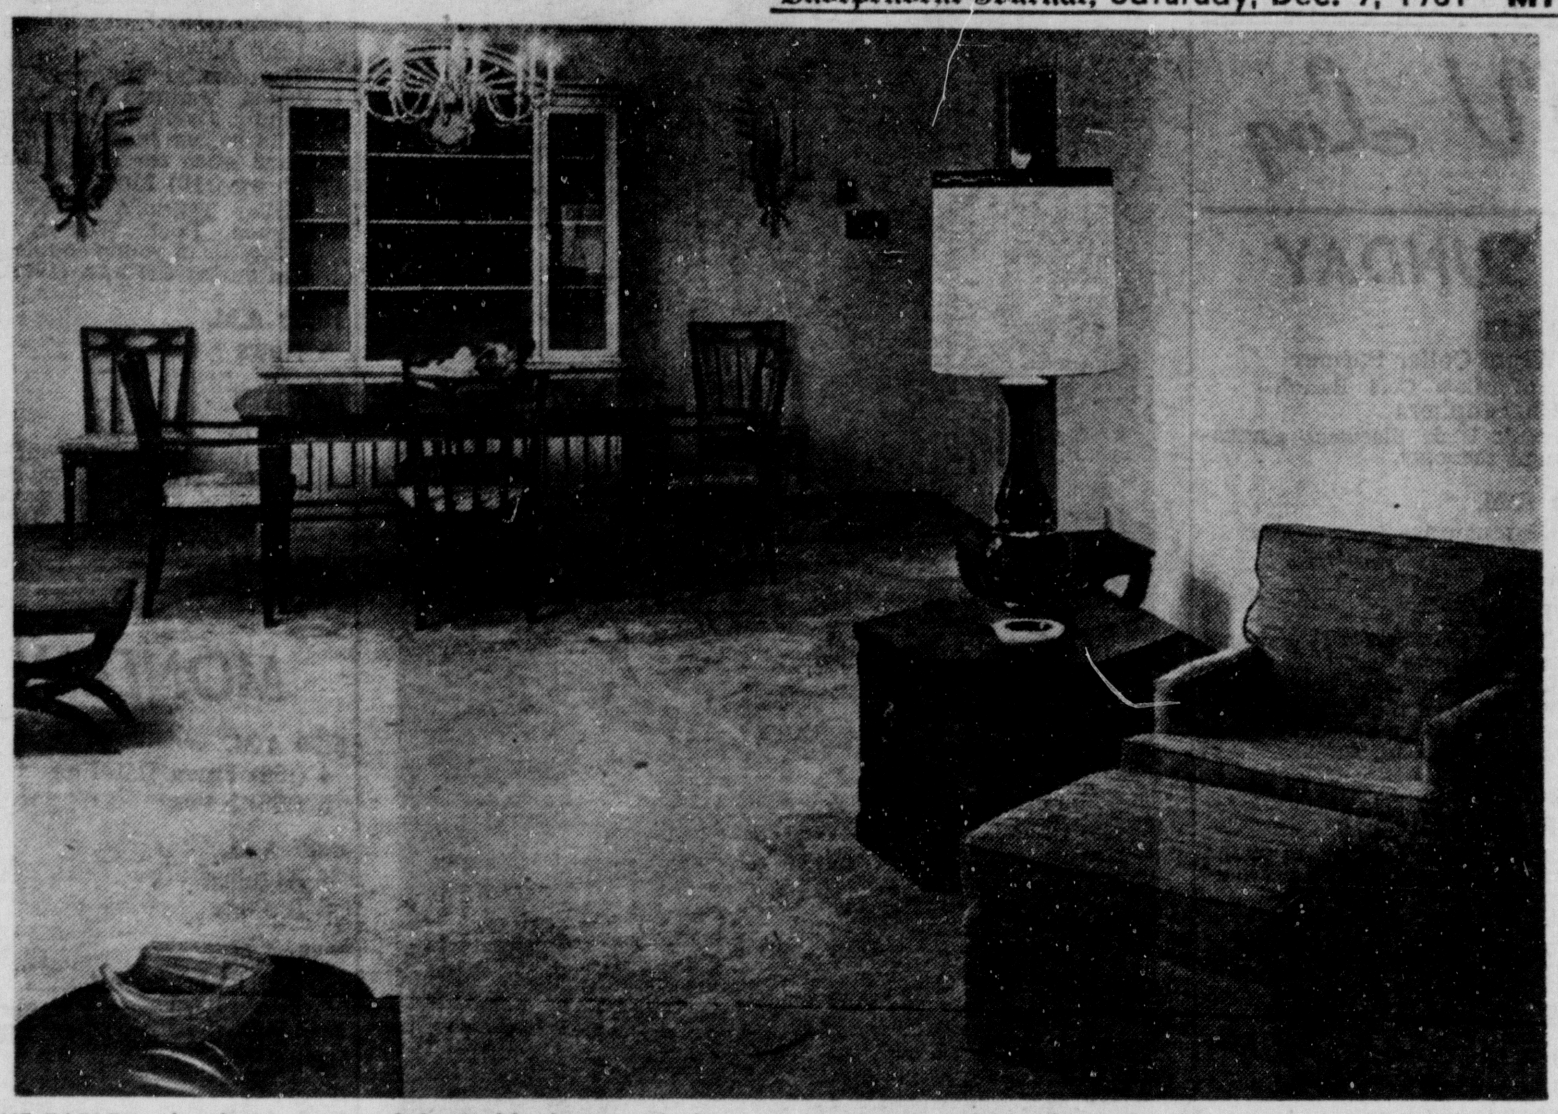
In furnishing their home, the Dobbs had the advice of the decorator not only upon such matters as the selection of their carpets, furniture and draperies, but also the wallpapers, the accessories, etc.

For instance: The gold leaf paper in the master bathroom. And the gold-plated faucets in the bathrooms.

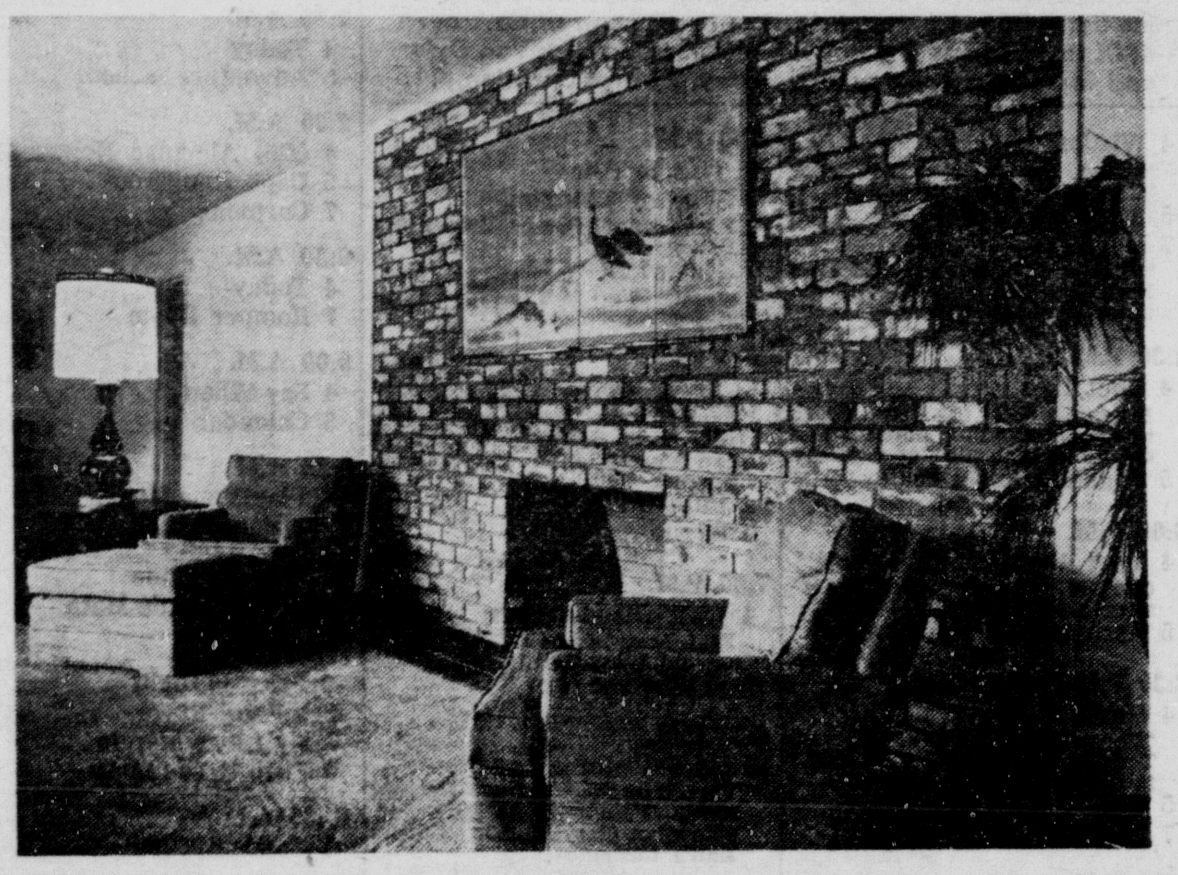
In the dressing area of the master bathroom, Boyd took the same fabric he had selected for draperies and stretched it on the wall as "wallpaper."

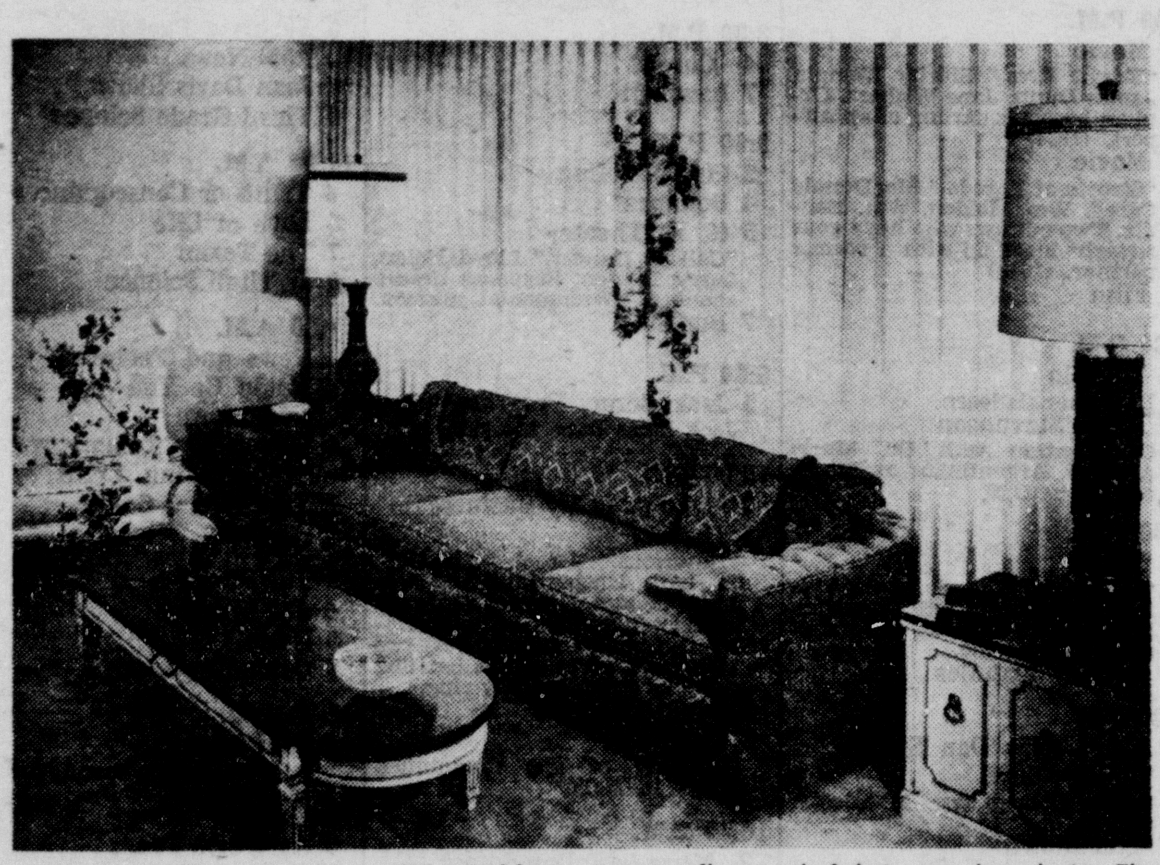
The Venetian chandelier in the dining room is another piece in which Boyd, and the Dobbses, take special pride.

"It was one of those cases where we were able to exercise the greatest care in the selection of every piece," Boyd says.



THE TABLE in the dining room of the Dobbs home is Italian provincial of parchment mahogany, the breakfront behind it of antique white with brush gold trim. The backboard of the breakfront has been upholstered in the same fabric as was used on the sofa. Carpeting is the same as in the living room. Chandelier is imported Venetian glass. Photo was taken before a four-foot arch divider separating living and dining rooms was installed.





HERE ARE TWO more pictures of the Dobbs living room. At top, the hand-painted screen over the fireplace was selected by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bellach during a trip to the Orient. Chairs flanking the fireplace are the same shade as carpet which is custom woven and dyed an antique coin gold color. In bottom photo can be seen the draperies, white and trimmed in the same flowered fabric as the chair. The appliqued trimming is in brown charcoals and off whites. The sofa is silk damask, moss green. The three lamps in the living room include one with an antique French wallpaper roll base, one with a hand-blown Belgian glass base and one that is an imported Cloisonne vase converted into a lamp.

Know Your Rhododendrons.

There are several varieties of fragrant rhododendrons, in hybrids and species that are or have been available in this area. A superb species is EDGEWORTH II, for the size of its flowers with a rose tinge on white background which are quite fragrant, species BURMANICUM is a heavy bloomer of greenish-yellow with deep green foliage, MADDEN II is a beautiful foliage plant that will take considerable wind, has large white trumpet blooms with numerous stamens. The most fragrant hybrid is the ever popular FRAGRANTISSIMUM with its over-abundance of white flushed pink flowers that fill the air with exhilarating fragrance. Its use as an espalier at the front entrance, along foundation walkways and the close in living area should not be underestimated. This variety is the most abused from improper culture of all the genus, deplorable for the neglect bestowed on such an outstanding specimen. We endeavor to have on hand all fragrant varieties that are available.
